Saved the Best For Last

Senior year is what every student in high school anxiously awaits. It is the final year for everything: your last chance to be with friends every day, your last homecoming, your last sword game, and your last 'first day of school' in high school. It is the last chance to walk down those familiar crowded halls and know just about everyone. Twenty years down the line, most seniors may only be able to recall the events they went to in high school. The class of '07 has had many such memorable moments. Whether it was in a classroom with friends or at a sporting event, the class of '07 has made the most of our high school years.

Each year, this class has created some great slogans. Sophomore year brought us "This is how we do," junior year "Ask about us," and last but not least, senior year, "We've saved the best for last!" The class of 2007 is not only the last class to ever graduate from the current building which up until now has been the only place known as "Comp," but this class is also the most memorable. We have no hard feelings about the new building... we're proud of being last... and best! Our freshmen, sophomore and senior years in high school saw us rightfully claim the sword from the Pacers. During spirit week, for all three years, the class of '07 has dominated the fear factor challenge, even upsetting the seniors our freshmen year. During sophomore year, we devastated the whole school by winning the penny wars. Last but not least, in our junior year during the spirit rally, we overpowered the senior class in the tug-o-war. Just when you thought it all had passed, we went and saved the best for last!

- Amanda Kenney

Ecology class provides a great chance to bring out your goofy personality. What other class is there where you can wear funny goggles in the service of the environment? For Kaitlin Buckley, Leticia Avery and Victoria Curto, Ecology was just another chance to hang out with friends and have a good time.

While dancing may be considered a favorite pastime, these girls can make it into a serious competition. Sarah Anne Morelli and Lasharie Weems didn't seem to care who watches; they always seemed to have a good time with it.

Senior year, the stadium is full, tensions are high, and oh look, three seniors are bringing the crowd to their feet. Timmy Thompson, Justin Lamontagne and Josh Malone made their voices heard and got the crowd pumped up.

Oh, what a day! Olivia Wegman entertains her friends with some unusual cheer. This day was also very important because this was her 17th birthday. With her awesome personality, this day will be hard to forget.

A trip to the Boston aquarium and missing a day of school is quite an adventure for these three. Stef Donze, Nicole Fredette, and Catie Britten sat back and relaxed after a long day of walking.

These girls are crazy! While showing their athletic ability, Ally Montemagni and Lisa Pise made their journey up a pole in Pise's basement. These girls are not only known for their crazy moments, but also for the tight bond they have created between each other over the past four years.

Showing their true colors, Catie Britten and Sarabeth Hedge decide to go all out for their last sword game. While watching the game, they screamed with excitement, especially when we won the sword.

Dedication

Mrs. Czupryna

Mrs. Czupryna is a real piece of work! On the third day of school, she is the one who stands in the middle of the hall and asks, "Is it June yet?" Mrs. Czupryna's humor adds a different spice to her lessons every day. For instance, if you are in her class, and you are watching a movie; she'll pause it and ask her students, "Did you see that?," and she will add comments to every scene of it.

Mrs. Czupryna is one of those teachers who stays after school every single day to help her students get their work done. Some days, she is even there until 4 o'clock! She is a person that will always go above and beyond to help someone out.

Mrs. Czupryna has two sons. She loves British literature, and she loves to read, of course. She can make a story, even the most boring story, come alive, and she can always get her students into it. With her personality and very strong humor, Mrs. Czupryna will be no doubt missed after she retires this year. Her colleagues and her students love her, and even the janitors are amused by her personality. Mr. Brown, once a student teacher who was mentored by Mrs. Czupryna, said, "she knows her stuff, but more importantly, she knows her students."

--Amanda Kenney

Mrs. Starke

Mrs. Starke has been working at Chicopee Comp almost since it opened. However, she started off working in the guidance department. Then she decided to become a teacher. She is one of those teachers who actually cares if the students pass or fail. Even if a student has a fourteen for an average, she will still stay on the student's case and keep on telling them that she believes they can pass.

Mrs. Starke has four boys and enjoys her grandchildren. She loves to be in her garden; it is her escape from everything that's going on in the world.

She also has a passion for reading, and she plays the organ at her church.

Mrs. Starke has been known to launch a shoe towards a student who is napping! The irony of this is that she is a tiny lady-- a tiny lady with a big attitude who always drives big cars-- who would have thought? Even though she seems to be a hard-nosed teacher, all she really cares about is her students and their futures. She is just one of those rare people that never stops loving and hoping. If you see Mrs. Starke around, thank her for her hard work, caring attitude, and dedication. Like many great teachers, she is underappreciated. Mrs. Starke will be greatly missed as she goes on to retirement.

- Amanda Kenney

Mr. Clancy

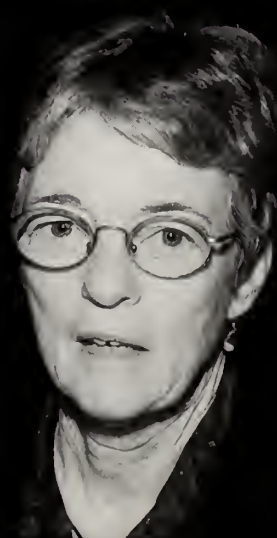

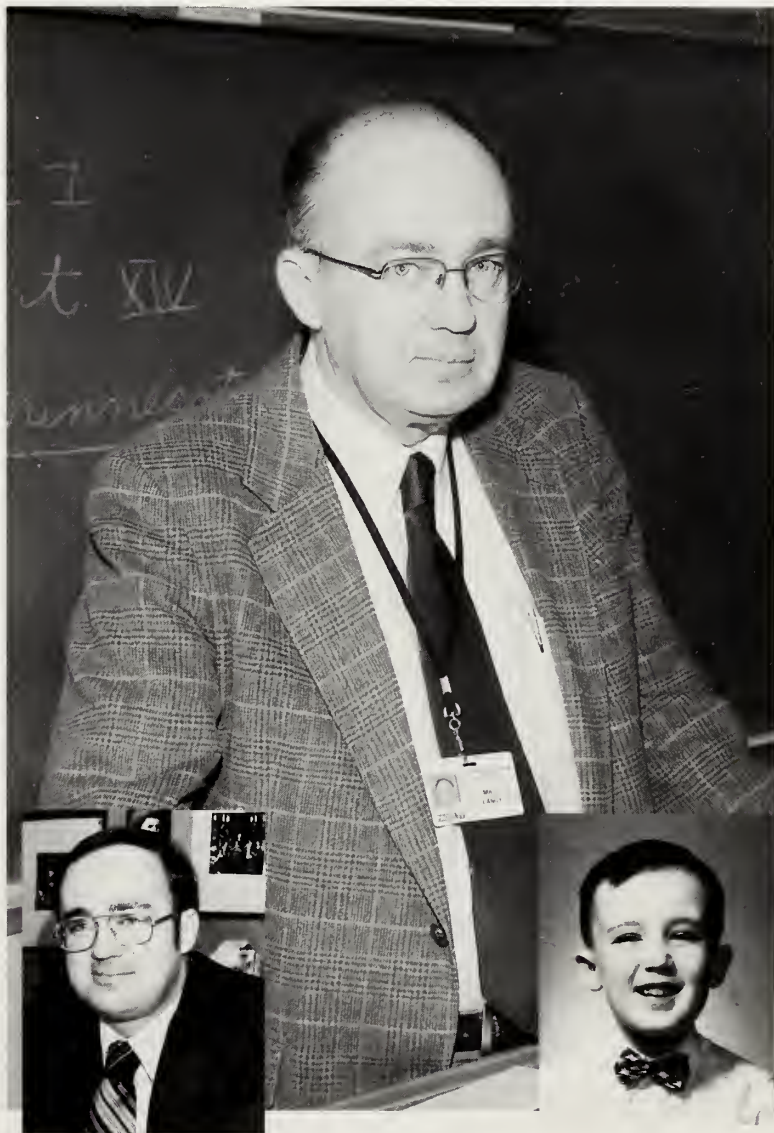

You've either seen him or at least know who he is. Mr. Clancy is the person who walks through the halls with a stern look on his face, his briefcase in his hand, his old-fashioned glasses and his matching suit and tie. He barely cracks a smile when someone yells, "I love you," at him in the hallway; he smirks a little, maybe, then continues walking like he never even heard it.

Everyone who knows who he is sees him as a gentleman scholar. He has so much knowledge about everything that if you need to know about, say, the economic impact of the guild system in Renaissance Italy, Mr. Clancy is your guy!

Ever since he was young, he has always worn formal dress attire. In fact, most of his family has never even seen him being "informal." His family refers to him as "Mr. Holyoke," since he always goes to the St. Patrick's Day Parade. He also has two sons of whom he is very proud. Occasionally, he will speak about them to his students. He will talk mostly about their success, but he also explains to his students how they got achieved that success: hard work, perseverance, and even a little motivation from their father.

Since he is retiring, Mr. Clancy will be greatly missed by his students and even more by his colleagues. He is an old-fashioned guy, but that's what everyone loves about him. There aren't many people that are left in the world that are like Mr. Clancy, and for that and his contributions to CCHS, he is much appreciated.

"The best part about your junior year is knowing you're only one step away from graduating."

- Ella Popovichenko

The junior class shows their school spirit at the Super Bowl rally. Seniors may have saved the best for last, but they are certainly not the loudest.

Juniors Brett Salamon and Alex Phillips are finishing up their homework in study hall. They're most likely two of the only students ever seen doing homework in study hall. You can't see it, but everyone around them is sleeping.

One fish, two fish, red fish, er, Cat in the Hat. Katie Liucci, a junior, shows her love for Dr. Seuss's classic since she dressed up like this crazy cat for Halloween.

Ella Popovichenko sits in Mr. Brown's study hall every day third period. When asked, Ella says "The best part about your junior year is knowing you're only one year away from graduating."

A nice Save for the Juniors...

School is harder, but times are getting better. You know it must mean one thing. Junior year! This is the best year of high school for many. Finally we can be called upperclassman, and so let the games begin. Powderpuff, Spirit Week, and most importantly, the long awaited junior vs. senior rivalry await.

We can expect great football games and our boys dancing around at homecoming like girls for spirit points. Some will say junior year is also the hardest year out of all four. Classes get harder and homework gets doubled in amount. By far the most important part of being a junior is uniting with your class. You are no longer a group of kids, but a class of good friends with stories to tell and laugh about.

- Katie Liucci

Class Of 2008

Kyra Wilk and Katie Liucci met last year in their American Studies class. Now, almost a year later, they are always seen together.

Juniors show support for class Vice President and fellow classmate Atoa Ripley. At the swim game this year, our boys painted their bodies to spell out "Ripley."

Corey Cram, Shanele Newsome, Hannah O'Sullivan, and Jerry Moise take a break from class to wander the halls together. The four of them are all excited about being juniors this year and the idea of being seniors next year.

The junior class is full of school spirit. There are always students in every class that stand out in the crowd. Maybe they aren't the star athletes, and maybe they're not scholastic scholars, but they sure do have a voice! Standing out in the crowd at a rally or at a football game is kind of a big deal for some people. As a student who is known for being loud and hyper, I absolutely love it! You are only in high school once, and if you don't have fun, well, what a waste of four years of your life. So be loud and be "school spirited!" The class of 2008 is doing an amazing job at keeping up their school spirit!

-Katie Liucci!

Hey Kylie Brown! Junior, Kylie Brown, makes sure that she is heard. She is always a voice that stands out in the crowd! Full of excitement and school spirit, she's always around during school events cheering everyone on!

There are only so many words to express the good and bad times of high school. Many of us have our favorite part of each year, and when asked about his favorite part of junior year, Mike Dearing said, "The Sword game-- I got together with a bunch of my friends, all decked out in blue & gold, and we went to cheer on our team."

Many other Juniors look forward to attending their first prom or participating in a Powder-puff routine which is strictly only for juniors and seniors. Katie Lucci admits, "Powder-puff was my favorite part of Junior year. We didn't win, but the boys did a great job, and we all had tons of fun!"

No matter what part of Junior year you enjoyed most, you will always remember the great times throughout your whole high school experience.

This group of Junior girls gather around in the hall to catch up on some gossip. You will always find these girls goofing around and always having a good time!

So now we have this new "law" that you aren't allowed to carry your cell phone with you during school hours. Last year it was a school rule, but this year it is a district policy! More and more high school students are getting cell phones as gifts for Christmas and for their birthdays, making this policy harder to obey. I went around school and asked a few select students how they hide their cell phone. Whether it's hiding it behind your purse or down by your lap, students are becoming more creative with their cell phone hiding abilities. Soon enough, teachers are most likely just going to give up on catching us in the act.

-Jessica Pepin

Junior Katie Liucca is always seen with her cell phone in hand. In order to avoid it getting taken away, she has various tactics of hiding it from teachers. In one particular class, she uses her purse to text her friends.

Sophomore Year

..At Its BEST!

Caitlin Goda is one of the many amazing sophomores at CCHS. To many, she may just be a normal sophomore, but what people do not know is that she is actually referred to as "Sparky the Clown" while participating with her mom as independent clowns at the Clown Ally in Springfield, MA. She and her mom have been doing this for about seven years now. They took classes at Holyoke Community College and have even made their own business cards to promote themselves as clowns. They participate in events from children's birthday parties to volunteer work including the Rays of Hope Walk-a-thon. They have learned to make balloon animals, do tricks, and do face painting. Cait and her mom also compete in a number of conventions to win prizes and just recently won 2nd place. Caitlin Goda said, "We are getting ready for this summer's convention, and I can not wait. It's going to be so much fun."

-Sam Langevin

Cait Goda is dressed up in her clown costume as "Sparky the Clown."

One night over the summer, a group of sophomores got together at Christina Martin's house. They enjoyed their night together swimming and roasting marshmallows over the fire. They can't wait to do it again this summer!

For their secret Santa Christmas party, these girls all get together at one of their friends house and exchanged gifts. They had so much fun that they are thinking about doing it again next year.

Ms. McCarthy's students are taking in a lesson about MCAS. March is a stressful time for these students. Three days of English MCAS testing were in store for them that month.

The 10th grade pre-AP English class listens to Ms. Goudreault lecture. Ms. Goudreault is also one of the 10th grade class advisors.

Spirit week is a wild time at CCHS. These sophomores did a fine job sportin' the red for their class. Sophomores did really well in the rally, and earned many points for their class.

Chelsey Taylor, Shinead Vasquez and Amanda Downie have been best friends for five years. These three beautiful girls never have a dull moment together.

As years go by, the school system seems to find more ways to "improve" the quality of the school. Its not hard to notice how they make it more strict and inconvenient for students. As technology grows, they find more and more ways to restrict the students connection outside and inside of school.

With restricted sites online, id policies, and the nofood or drink in class room policies, it never seems to end. The new one this year is the crackdown on no cell phone use in, during, and after school. They may have good cause for these restrictions, but students are not giving up. Face it, if you want to use it, you're going to use it, even if you risk getting it taken away.

-Heather Salamon

It's not easy to hide your cell phone during class. Many have taken a bathroom break to sneak a call or two. We even go to the extreme of "acting" like we are looking for something in our purse to send a text message. Either way, Chelsea Mancini has not let the cell phone policy stop her.

What is Your Favorite Accessory?

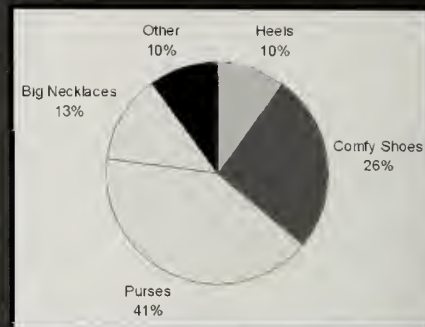

The Sophomore class has got the look! When asked about their favorite accessories, in came diverse results. For the girls, purses won in a landslide. It was as if it was more of a necessity than an accessory. The same went for the guys; hoodies dominated the poll.

The sophomores have made it through their freshman year. For many, this is the hardest part of coming to high school. Now that they have that accomplished, they have the next two years to look forward to. So what are the sophomores really looking forward to in their junior and senior years? Here is what most students said they can't wait for:

- Getting their license and driving themselves to school
- Getting a job so they can make their own money
- Being a senior and getting senior privileges
- Graduating and getting out of this school

These sophomores are excited to be seniors so they can enjoy senior week with their friends at the end of the year. Senior week includes prom, picnic, banquet, and graduation.

9th Grade - A Start at the Beginning

Mike Blair, Ryan Malone and Jared Heath have been best friends since middle school and plan on being friends for a long time. "I cant wait until I am a senior and can play in the sword game!," said Mike Blair. "We can't wait to paint our bodies blue & yellow!," said Ryan and Jared.

The class clowns, Brett Russell and Winston Cartright, always make everyone laugh during Spanish class. This was very typical of them.

"My freshmen year has been so much fun, so far. I can't wait until spirit week. I heard it is the best week to come to school, so I'm definitely coming everyday that week," said Nicole Spadoni.

First yet Far Behind the Best

On the first day of school, the freshmen enter in to a new and unfamiliar environment with new faces, new teachers and of course the intimidating upperclassmen. Like all freshmen, they found it easy to get lost and were shoved in the halls trying to find their new classes. They hoped to find some familiar faces in their classrooms from middle school.

This year, many freshmen will meet new friends by going to the sword game, school dances, powder puff, Mr. CCHS, homecoming, or by joining a sport or a club. The class of 2010 have a lot to look forward to and many memories, still, to make.

-Brittany Bourdo

Deanna Albert, Ashley Assarian and Josue Perez took a little break on the stairs to chill and talk before the first bell rings. They know soon they will be late to class.

"I love high school! The sword game was awesome, dressing up for Halloween was fun, and we are looking forward to spirit week," said Kassie O'Connor with Amanda Fitzherbert.

Allison Theroux and Josue Ortiz, both freshmen, said "Freshmen year has been fun, so far, but we just can't wait to be upperclassmen."

Class Of 2010

A group of freshmen show their school spirit and earn points for their class by dressing up in their Halloween costumes! It didn't take long for names to figure out that CCHS is a place where people are into dress up days.

Freshman year is a time that many students dread. This may be because of all the homework, a heavier work load, or just more responsibility. Not all freshman look at coming to high school as a scary or bad thing. When asked what they looked forward to most in ninth grade, most students said seeing their friends that they hadn't seen since middle school and sharing their new experiences with them. Some students looked forward to meeting new people and making new friends. There are many more exciting things that happen in high school that people look forward to such as spirit week, prom, and becoming an upperclassmen. Many of the freshmen boys that play football are looking forward to trying out for Junior Varsity.

- Lasharie Weems

When asked what she looked forward to most in ninth grade, freshman, Patricia Meyer responded, "I would have to say seeing all my older friends that I haven't seen since middle school."

Every day the cafeteria and nearby hallway in this school are packed with people. Bodies are smashed so close that you can smell the person next to you. One thing we all hope for next year in the new building is a more spacious cafeteria and more room to relax at lunch.

The cafeteria staff does the best they can. They serve up a variety of lunches every day. One finds at least two main meal choices along with pasta bar, salad bar, sandwich bar, soup, and snacks. Random freshmen were asked, "What is your favorite school lunch?" Here is what they said...

Jessica Buchanan

Willmer Lopez, a freshman, told us, "my favorite lunch is tuna." He looks forward to lunch every day just because of that tuna sandwich at the deli bar. Mmmm good!

After surveying a majority of the freshman class, the votes were finally in. Votes from freshman about what kind of shoes they wear took hours to gather. There were five categories of shoes they picked from: sneakers, flip flops, flats, heels and boots. The students picked which one they wear most. They struggled to decide, but finally chose one. The choice that outdid the rest of them is "Sneakers"! With its one hundred votes there was no way flip flops were catching up now. Other less popular but no less interesting footwear in the running included flip flops, flats, heels and boots.

Sara Mitchell a freshman just got through voting for which shoe she like and wears the most. She's so enthusiastic and couldn't wait to find out which shoe would be the winner!

No matter what day of the week it is, these freshmen have spoken up. Perhaps doing this survey on a Friday influenced the results of what day of the week they favored the most. They chose "Friday" as their pick of the week! The anticipation is always highest on Friday near the end of the school day. The bell goes off at 2:08 P.M., and relief finally sets in. The weekend is here!

Around the Halls

Student Life

This year was filled with days, nights and friends we will never forget. Our high school memories are something that we will always carry with us. Aside from academics, students make their marks among peers. The students of CCHS know how to go all out for spirit days such as Halloween and dances like the homecoming dance.

This year was filled with many victories. After defeating CHS in the infamous Sword game, we went on to win the Super Bowl. The homecoming powder puff competition had been eagerly anticipated since freshmen year. The competition was tight, but in the end the seniors dominated the juniors. Seniors also won spirit week this year; it was just one more example of our ability to make the most of our final year.

By: L-Dubz & Danny Bear

Halloween dress up day is one day when, no matter what grade you're in, everyone tries to go all out.

Ralphie Rivera, Ryan Murphy, and Roland Gregoire dress as Willy Wonka and two oompa-loompas for Halloween dress-up day. All three also look forward to spirit week every year.

Seniors try to make their last year their best. Their hard work and dedication was shown the night of the homecoming dance as they fight for their right to claim victory.

Senior, Lasharie Weems, shows off her dance moves at homecoming. Wearing a risque shirt, she and junior Hector Gonzalez break it down on the floor.

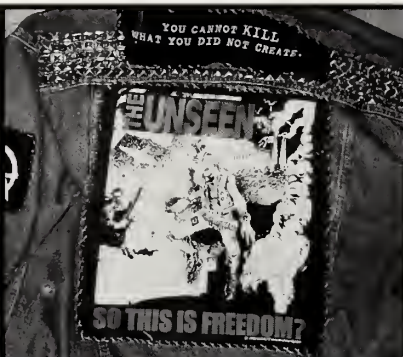

Last Dance

From their first time stepping up to the dance floor, the juniors made a lively attempt at competing with the seniors. At the end of the night, the juniors realized that Powder Puff wasn't an easy thing. Next year they'll learn from their mistakes and work harder.

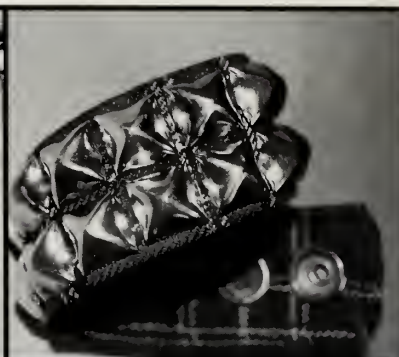

Courtney Young, a senior, wears camo shoes. The tips of them, however, make it look like they are baby Converse.

This jean jacket has the Unseen back patch, has over a hundred studs, and has "anarchy" and "eat the rich" patches on the arms. It also has patches of local bands and buttons on the collar. This jacket is worn by senior Michelle Bergeron.

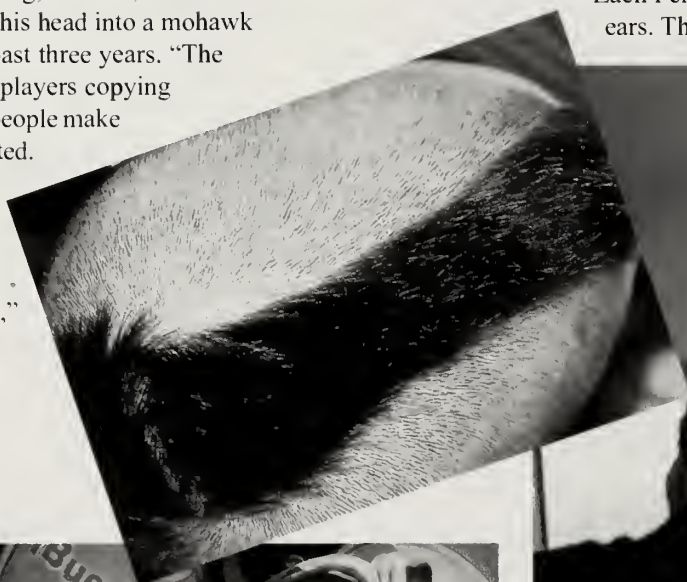

Tiara Grigg, a junior, has one-of-a-kind piercings that no one else at Comp has. She has a bullring and an eye piece.

Although studded bracelets are familiar, the red plaid ban is not. This bracelet was made by a student with nothing but cardboard, fabric and studs taken from a belt.

Justin Long, a senior, has been shaving his head into a mohawk for the past three years. "The football players copying the TV people make me irritated. They're not even shaved that well," says Justin.

Zach Perusse, a senior, has double lip piercings and half inch gauges in his ears. This senior is definitely one of a kind!

Keisha Torres is the only one in Comp who wears, or even owns, a Dora The Explorer backpack.

Kyra Wilk, a junior, shows her "smiley" piercing that is under her lip.

One of a Kind Styles of 2007

Justin Long has been wearing his black and white skull-designed shoes for six months now. "I bought them because I thought they were glow in the dark, but they aren't," he said.

Unique and stand-out styles are hard to come by these days in the high school world, with "trend-a-nitis," taking over. With fashion magazines, sports and TV styles, trends are spread through school like wildfire, but there are a few who go their own way. Some people in this school even make their own clothes or simply add to what they already have. Shoes, you'll find, can be pointed and spiked. They can add four inches to any girl. There is no such thing as a simple plain t-shirt for guys or girls. Camo, beads, strings and zippers accompany and cover anything. With guys, however, you never have to worry about fit because their clothes are so big, you can't even tell what size they are anyway. But you can't forget the ones who simply don't follow fashion and don't try to stand out because they just don't care. They only wear what they like: t-shirts and jeans with their favorite band or brands.

--- Michelle Bergeron

High tops are a recurring fashion. The thing no one else has are tube socks. Those have gone out of style for all but one.

Adam Reardon, a senior, expresses his need to stand out from everyone with a jacket that is decorated with scraps of things like buttons, key chains, patches and even torn off pieces of pants!

Jenn Welch, a junior, chooses to wear her fishnet stockings to class. She also wears jeans and high tops to throw a bit of punk into her look.

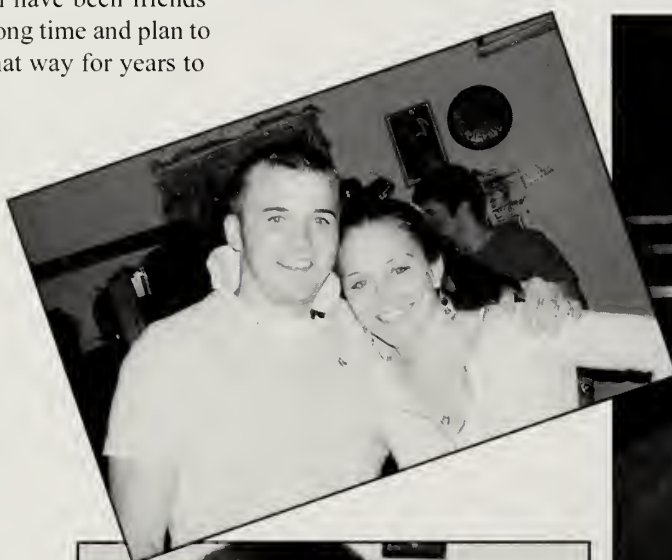

Enjoying their night, Jen Kalisz, Jeremy Shepard and Carly Siano were nothing but smiles the whole night at a friend's house.

Getting ready together to go out to a party, these girls spent the whole weekend together to celebrate Jess Cote's birthday.

Kyle Phillips and Kate Jopson have been friends for a long time and plan to stay that way for years to come.

Jen Reither and Jess Cote are inseparable. The two always spend their weekends together. Whether it's going out or staying in, they always seem to have a good time.

At a Friday night football game, Lisa Pise and Ally Montemagni cheered on our hot football players!

During the senior vs. junior football game, these senior girls acted as cheerleaders. They had a lot of spirit and tons of fun that day.

Weekends at Their BEST

These girls love to stay in and just spend time together! They always hang out every weekend

Katie Pressey, Sam Langevin and Joselyn Comeau love to have a good time. Whenever seen together, these three are always laughing!

Weekends have been and always will be a big part of every teen's life. Weekends are usually spent with friends either going out to a crazy party, going downtown, maybe going bowling or perhaps even just staying in, eating lots of food and just laughing our hearts out with each other. Weekends are what make people such great friends. It's a time to relax, be yourself and just have all around have a good time together. Weekends sometimes are excuses to snap PICTURES PICTURES PICTURES! Almost everyone has a digital camera these days, and they get used constantly. After high school is over, we probably won't talk to half of the people we do now. So before it comes to an end, we need to get in all the fun we can. "Years from now we won't remember every Friday or Saturday night or the things that made us laugh so hard until our stomachs hurt, but we will always remember the ones who were there," said one student. When I first read this quote, I thought. WOW, now how true is that? High school may be the best years of our lives, so we need to enjoy it while it lasts.

- Sam Langevin

You'll usually see most of this group together all the time. They have the most class spirit this school has ever seen. As they say, "We study hard but party harder!"

Alvin Arce is standing on his truck and showing his "truck attitude." "Diesel is for the diesel... get out of my way," says Alvin.

Josh Avery is the owner of his prized red truck. "Quick, reliable, good choice," says Josh.

Here is Amanda Ciecko with her brand new car. One cool Cobalt keeps Ciecko cruisin.'

Look at those two seniors with their expensive cars as they are 'throwing up the shocker.' "We both have the same cars yo," says Abdou.

Great friends, Chris Sawa and Julianne Labreque, both drive the same types of cars. "We may have the same car, but mine is a five speed, and it has a Red Sox license plate," says Julie. "Julie and I have sexy cars," says Chris Sawa.

Kenneth Griffin owns these babies. Jealous?

Good friends Sarah Mekal and Joselyn Comeau are having fun showing off their new cars "I was so excited when Joselyn and I got matching cars... it was super," says Sarah Mekal.

Senior Cars!!!

Amanda Kenney is seen here with her red Cavalier. "My car is kinda like the clown car considering I'm so tall. Despite that, I can fit more people in there than you think," says Amanda.

Freedom to Ride

"Car." These three little letters make a big word for many students in high school. The privilege to drive a car is a big part of many teens' lives. Seniors like being able to drive instead of having to rely on others to bring them to school, to work, or to any other place. Some students have expensive cars, some have cars that may not be perfect, but all have cars that get them to where they have to go. Being old enough to drive is a big change for teens, and having a car is also a change for teens. They feel more responsible. This is one way they have grown from childhood to adulthood. A car also represents freedom. To be able to go just about anywhere they want brings a new sense of independence and individuality.

These three seniors, Kyle Phillips, Kenny Labrie and Tiffany McGale, are sitting back and relaxing on their cars, and they all have the same car. "I wanna go fast," says Kenny Labrie."

Sam Langevin and Nikki Wagner are showing off their spirit by "giving the peace sign for Volvo because it is a like a little "v," as in "Volvo are life," says Sam Langevin and Nikki Wagner.

Techno? Well, to Josh Avery, a senior, that's the type of music he loves to listen to while driving. "I like the music people don't really think about, like the bands Bloc Party and DJ Tiesto."

Adam, a senior, says, "I play a lot of instruments, but mostly drums, guitar and bass." He has been influenced by Tool, Steve Morris and Something Corporate.

Shawn Francisco has been playing guitar for two years now. He started playing when he saw, Theacacia Strain play. "I just learned how to play 'Thriller' by Michael Jackson last week," Shawn said to Ms. Gil during class.

The unique taste in music doesn't stop at the kids. Mr Z. and Mr. Jendrysik love hip hop and popular rap songs just as much as the students.

"Hillside is a great band, and the music is nice to dance to," commented, senior, Ella Vasilevich.

Colin Moge', the most recent member of the band Sleep with the Skeleton, shows off his skill at the keyboard. His addition to the band has brought a different and unique sound.

This performance of Sleep with the Skeletons last year in the Battle of the Bands gave them second place finish and set a level of excellence for up and coming bands in our school. Hopefully this year's show will be as competitive as last years, and everyone will bring their best efforts forward.

"The Last Song..."

Senior Victoria Curto says this when asked about her taste in music: "I have grown up on all types of music, and because of my parents I appreciate all types of music."

Mike Harris is one very enthusiastic drummer. He is the drummer of the band The Search. He has been playing the drums since he was little.

"This may be the last thing I write for long..." starts the first line of "The Last Song" by The All American Rejects. Coincidentally this captures the feeling of Comp as our old building is used for the last time. Many seniors are thinking along another line which says that "I hope you will miss me when I'm gone." Students in this school have a wide variety of tastes in music that influences them in their lives. Everything from The Rolling Stones and The Beatles to Sean Paul and Akon are stuck in the minds of Comp students. Although some people may be surprised by the contrasts many students' tastes encompass, this is not uncommon. While many trends of music are still set by what most people see on the TV, some Comp students tastes run to the more local or obscure. Styles change over time along with the people in the schools. Throughout the years, many different bands, artists and groupies have roamed these halls. In the end, it's great to see such variety, instead of the same thing repeatedly. Even after the class of 2007 is gone, the variety of music will continue to grow, and the diversity of the music will live on. "...Somehow I knew it would fade away... this is The Last Song!"

-Sarahanne Morelli

"Every song ends. Is that any reason not to enjoy the music?"

- Ellie, One Tree Hill

The All American Rejects is a band that has motivated bands and listeners from all types of genres.

Pink Floyd had a huge impact on high school culture nationwide and in this school. The Wall was the inspiration for this particular piece of art. Did administrators even know that the character with "bug eyes" satirizes teachers?

Ballet is a form of dance that can inspire the uninspired. If you look closely at the corner of the painting you will notice that it was done by "Sue Stefanik" in 1989. The little message she put says, "I love Michael."

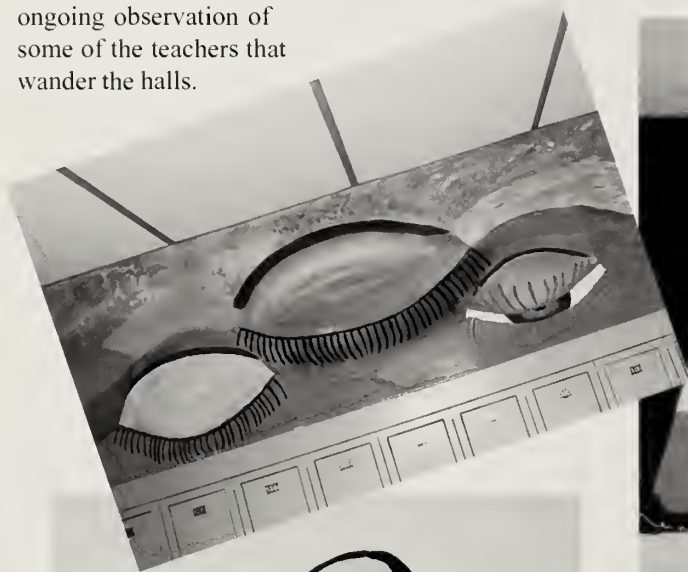

Bubbles, Bubbles and more Bubbles! This painting has a fun vibe and will always be remembered. Painted in '85, this piece of art attracts the attention from many in the usually crowded hallways.

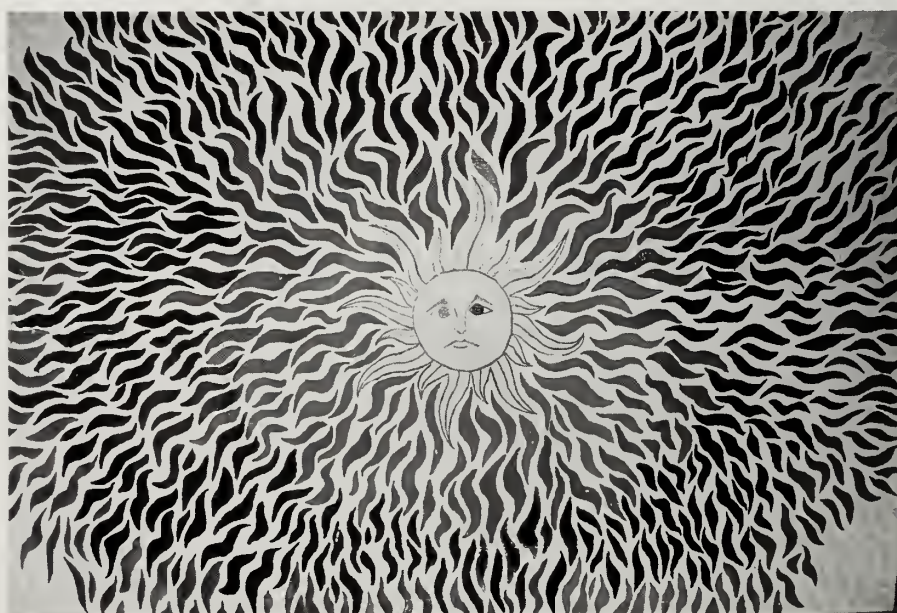

This painting symbolizes the 1986 Berry Div. Champs. With the help of this mural, our school honors athleticism and hard work.

This eye catching portrayal of the "eyes" shows the ongoing observation of some of the teachers that wander the halls.

This picture may be foreign to some, mainly because it faces the library, but those who have seen it know how vibrant the primary colors are.

Our school is very spirited, and the artwork represents the attitude that the students feel.

Probably the most psychedelic piece of art in the school, this is the one design that will never be forgotten. This artwork probably has more meaning than meets the eye. This black and white reproduction does not do justice to the cascading sunburst of rainbow colors emanating from the center sun.

Lasting Art

This is one painting I think we all notice, but one should look again. The Comedy and Tragedy Masks, a common symbol of Theater Arts, are included in this painting by Danielle Smith in 2006. This mural is one of the best.

Did you know that there are about 66 graphics in this one painting alone? Each graphic is very unique and not like the others, just like the people in our school.

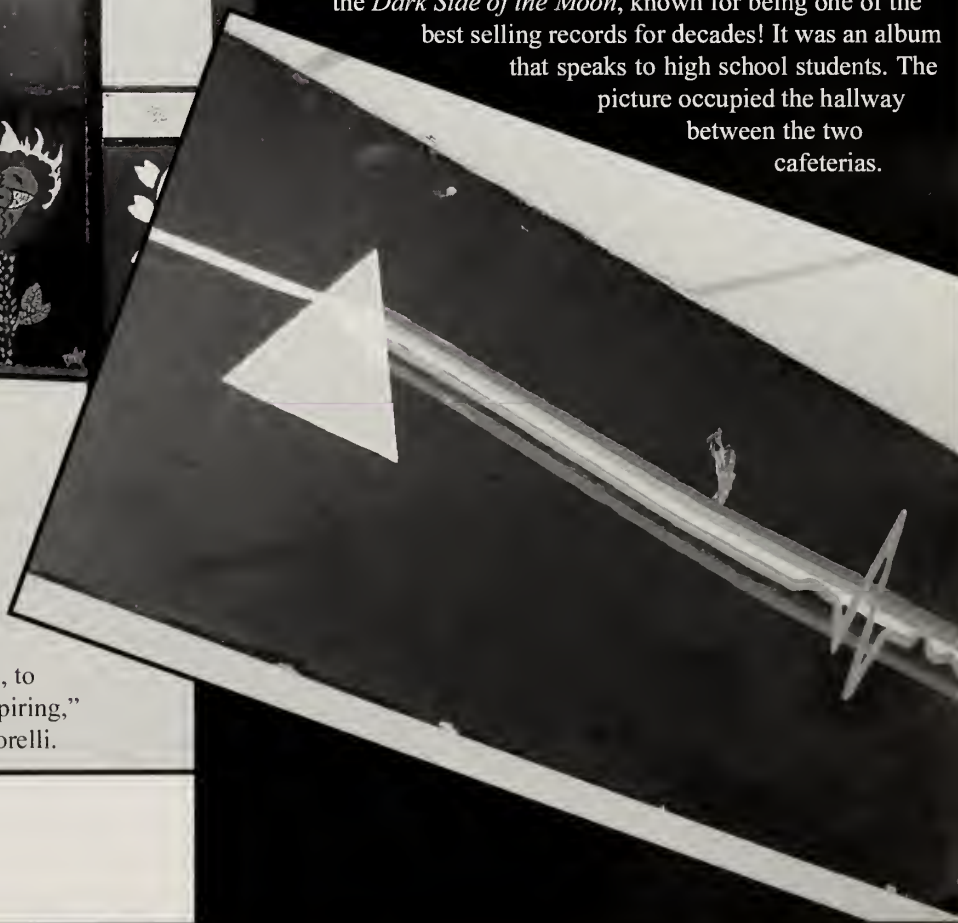

"This is one painting that I love the most. I love the attention to detail and the originality of this painting. This painting, to me, is very calming and inspiring," says senior, Sarah Anne Morelli.

We're told it will all come crashing down. After we move into the new school next fall, this building will be demolished. These two yearbook pages will be all that's left of dozens of murals painted over decades by unnumbered students. Take just one example: the year was 2002, and the advisers were Ms. Potorski and Mr. Brown. The class mural, as is typical, featured all the names of the graduates of the class and the advisors. "I was glad I was immortalized somewhere in the school because my name is in there too," said Ms. Potorski. Mr. Brown beamed with pride as he pointed to his name and the names of those in a class he was very fond of. Each mural carries with it an equal amount of emotion to someone, somewhere.

Memoirs of a Geisha came out in 2005, and yet this painting was done by Lynn Foster and Caroline Harvie in 1984.

Pink Floyd once again marked our halls with the art from the Dark Side of the Moon, known for being one of the best selling records for decades! It was an album that speaks to high school students. The picture occupied the hallway between the two cafeterias.

Here are the Chicopee Comp cheerleaders for the 2006-2007 season at the sword game. They embody spirit!!!

Coach Schuerfeld speaks during the spirit rally before the Super Bowl. "I am very proud of these young men for what they have accomplished," said coach Schuerfeld.

The fans cheer on the varsity football team during the big rivalry game vs. the Pacers. "I love going all out for sword games and painting myself. It's always a really fun time," said Ally Montemagni.

Evan Berneche and Keith Hart high five during the Super Bowl. "We Did It... Oh Yeah... Up Top," says Keith.

Here are the football mothers at a poster party where they made posters for their sons on the varsity football team to show that they have spirit and that they care. They are so proud of their boys.

After the Colts vs. Pacers sword game of 2006, the Colts regained the sword from the Pacers. We Colts had the sword for two years in a row before that and then regained it this year.

Evan Berneche holds the sword that Chicopee Comp won by beating Chicopee High in the big rivalry football game. Standing next to Evan is the Mayor of Chicopee, Mike Bissonette, along with our principal, Mr. Kozikowski.

Football Victories

Senior girls, Sarah Mekal, Meg Sullivan, Lauren Pineau, and Nikki Wagner are full of school spirit at the sword game. "Getting ready to cheer on the guys was super fun," said Sarah Mekal.

Football players Alex Parnicky, Jordan Arroyo, Evan Berneche and Brandon Provost revel in their Super Bowl victory. "This is amazing," Berneche said, "I can't really describe it in words right now. It took twenty-one years, and we brought home the first Super Bowl title to Comp."

The varsity team advances the ball during the Super Bowl against Auburn High School where they came out making history for Comp. "Football can make you fly," said Ralphie.

The football team worked extremely hard all year long, and they are "Awesome," said principal Kozikowski. The varsity team was given the honor of being the division 2A champs this year. They not only played in good weather but extremely bad weather too. The coaches and players put in countless hours with a sense of dedication that comes from the heart.

Varsity played twelve games including the Super Bowl. This season was the first in history that Chicopee Comp went into the Super Bowl and won. Comp had lost previously in two Super Bowl appearances in 1973 and 1985. This was the magic year when all became possible. Of course, the team practiced every day, and they consistently showed great sportsmanship. They always managed to get the fans fired up and loud during the games.

There were throngs of fans at every game, no matter what the weather, and fans showed their spirit by painting their bodies, making shirts, and yelling! The Super Bowl game was played at Holyoke High this year against Auburn High School, and it was a very cold day, but dedicated fans and cheerleaders were there watching their school become champions and make history. Coach Scheurfeld and coach Couture showed steadfast commitment and dedication. The freshman team also had a great year as did the junior varsity team. "I'll never forget you guys until the day I die," said an emotional coach Schuerfeld to his players, whom he referred to as family, after Comp beat Auburn to take the division 2A championship.

Timmy Thompson and Tibor Kmeczik, both very outgoing seniors, show their school spirit during the sword game vs. Chicopee High. "ME AND TIBOR ARE HOTT!", says Timmy." "Yea we are hot!!!!," says Tibor.

For Halloween Natasha Ruiz dressed up as a Doctor, and Ally Montemagni dressed up as Rocky. These two had fun acting out the part when "Rocky" gets knocked out.

Shinead Vasquez, Leann Rivard, Kate Joslyn and Chelsey Taylor are all good friends. What do you know? Connor Bilideau is with a group of cute girls-- what's new?

Evan Berneche and Jeremy Shepard never seem to fail at making everyone laugh.

For Christmas this year, Jessica Cote's mom bought all these lovely girls matching pajama pants. They loved them and spent the whole night wearing them.

A variety of Senior, Junior and Sophomore girls get together to show they can really have a good time and still keep it classy at their black and white themed Christmas Party!

A bunch of seniors gathered around to take their last picture together of '06 before the ball dropped, and it became '07-- OUR YEAR! This will definitely be one year that will never be forgotten.

Holidays Spent

Last summer, Timmy Thompson and Nikki Wagner enjoyed spending their Fourth of July together.

Always together, this group of sophomore girls celebrated New Year's with each other at a 'girls only' party. Whoever said you need boys to have a good time?

Holidays are always fun. Whether they're spent with family or friends, they're always spent with the best! Many holidays can get you out of school for a wonderful vacation we all love! Christmas vacation brings lots of presents to many, whereas Halloween allows you to dress up and receive candy from all your neighbors. Valentine's Day is really special because you can show someone how much they really mean to you. New Year's is always a blast fueled by a party. A typical Thanksgiving ends with a nap after too much turkey. For some, birthdays equal any holiday. Birthdays are one day out of the whole year when it's all about us. Who doesn't love that? No matter what holiday everyone celebrates, everyone loves to have a good time and spend it with all the people they love. These are the times we have to spend together before we all grow up and move away to college and eventually have a family of our own to celebrate with instead of all our high school friends.

- Sam Langevin

Sarah Mekal, Sam Langevin and Jen Kalisz played their favorite card game, Kings, on New Year's Eve.

The "Comp Crazies" are dedicated fans that attend each of the boys varsity basketball games. Evan Berneche is one of the loudest and "rowdiest" Comp Crazies.

Football players huddle together during the sword game rally. They were preparing to take on the Chicopee High Pacers.

The showcase in the second floor intersection displays all the accomplishments the football team has made. The sword and the trophies are in the display case.

Comp's offense scored 29 points against Chicopee High during the traditional Sword game. The Colts defeated their cross town rival with a score of 29-6.

Mike Conner dresses up as a blue knight to represent the seniors. Sabian Colon ran around the gym with Mike on his shoulders during the annual spirit week rally.

The best day of spirit week is color day. Every class dressed up in different colors to get points! Evan Berneche shows off how buff he is compared to all the girls in his class, including Nikki Wagner, Julianne Labrecque, Sarah Mekal and Jen Kalisz.

Not only were Alex Parnicky and Ally Montemagni crowned homecoming king and queen, but they have also been friends and neighbors since kindergarten.

Preparing for their fake talk show the boys of "Let's Do Lunch," including Chris Sawa, Chad Olech, Tibor Kmeczik and Kevin Joly, get ready to interview their guests.

These Senior girls are having tons of fun at homecoming. "It was our last homecoming together, and our boys winning powderpuff was the best," said Lauren Pineau.

Comp's Best Traditions...

These boys know how to "bring sexy back" with their dance moves and cute matching outfits.

07 Champs!

The class of 2007 Powderpuff champs show their enthusiasm. The Senior boys are excited that they just defeated the juniors, and all their hard work paid off.

Since Chicopee Comp was built in 1962, there have been traditions that have been handed down year to year and from class to class. Every year, the students look forward to the special events that take place. The annual Sword Game, in which the Chicopee Comp Colts play the Chicopee High Pacers, takes place in September. It is a great way to kick off the new school year. Students and faculty dress up in their school colors, blue and gold, to support the football team. It's an afternoon full of fun and cheering for the team.

This year the football team ruled. Not only did they win the sword, but they also became the Division 2A Super Bowl Champions. The homecoming dance is an event that everyone anticipates, especially the juniors and seniors. Not only is the night full of great music and dancing, but the junior and senior boys compete for who will be the next Powder Puff champs. The boys get to show the judges all their tumbling, flips and dance moves in a routine. This year, the senior boys beat the juniors; they were ecstatic.

The year winds down to a finish with spirit week. The week is filled with exciting activities and challenges that each class gets to participate in to show off how much school spirit they have! Even though the old high school will not be standing anymore, you can bet that the traditions that started here will be!

Stefanie Blair and Ryan Authier went to the Winter Cotillion. The Cotillion is a popular Comp tradition.

Spirit week is filled with fun events such as the class advisor tug of war. The class advisors of 2007, Mr. Jendrysik and Mr. Z, won this event and scored their class many spirit points!

Homecoming used to be a big event. The queen would arrive at the football game in a parade sitting inside a convertible.

Nicole Wagner, Carly Siano, Ally Montemagni, and Jessica Cote were the top four senior nominees at homecoming. Homecoming has been a tradition of Comp for many years.

Timmy Thompson rocks his mohawk for powderpuff. Many senior boys sported this look for their routine.

Whether it be the 70's, 80's or 2007, mohawks will always make a statement. It's not a new style; it's been around longer than our parents!

Chicopee Comp football players and fans celebrate after the sword game victory. This season the football players won the super bowl for the first time.

Nothing is better than the feeling of beating the Pacers at the sword game. Whether it's now or twenty years ago, it's always great to be able to say WE GOT THE SWORD!

These 1970's girls strut their stuff on 50's day. Class competitions like this one and various dress-up days are still popular traditions at Comp.

Sarah Anne Morelli, Therese Dawson, Victoria Curto, and Olivia Wegman show their school spirit on 50's day. Spirit week is a newer tradition, but it certainly is a favorite!

Now and Then

Graduation is an important, exciting, and scary day in your life. As freshmen, you can only dream of this feeling.

Chicopee Comprehensive's history began in 1962. The opening of the school was the beginning of many lasting traditions, short-lived trends, and bursts of school spirit. "The more things change, the more they remain the same" holds true with the traditions of Chicopee Comp. Events, such as Homecoming, Powderpuff, Sword Game and class competitions have become part of the fabric of Chicopee Comp's classes for years.

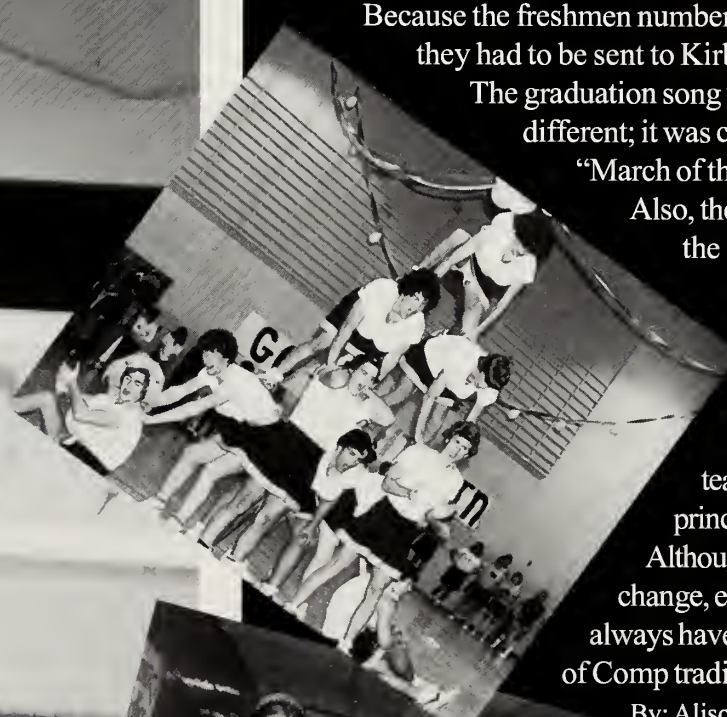

Some traditions have changed. At one time there was a H.E.R. dance which stands for "his economic relief." The ladies purchased the semiformal dance tickets. At one time there were over 2,000 students enrolled in Comp.

Because the freshmen numbered over 700, they had to be sent to Kirby school.

The graduation song used to be different; it was called a "March of the Priests."

Also, the winners of the sword game would be presented the sword by the losing team's principal. Although times change, everyone will always have memories of Comp traditions.

By: Alison Montemagni

Jen Riether, Jess Cote, and Brit Bourdo walk the halls of Comp. Watch out for Mr. Sweeney!

Shane Morin flies through the air during a basket toss. This stunt helped wow the judges, making the seniors the powderpuff champs! This tradition has been going on for years as you see in the picture to the right. Whether it's '06 or '84, the senior boys continue to put on a show with their outrageous routines.

Times have changed at Comp, along with styles and trends. However, friends hanging out in the halls will never change.

Our CTE Futures

Career Tech Ed

The career tech program has educated thousands of students throughout the years. The administrators of the CTE (Career & Technical Education) program continue to lead the program in new directions. CTE gives the students a chance to explore many future career possibilities. It provides the students with ideas and goals. Coming into Comp as freshmen, many don't have a clue as to their goals after high school. By deciding to go into this program, students expand their horizons.

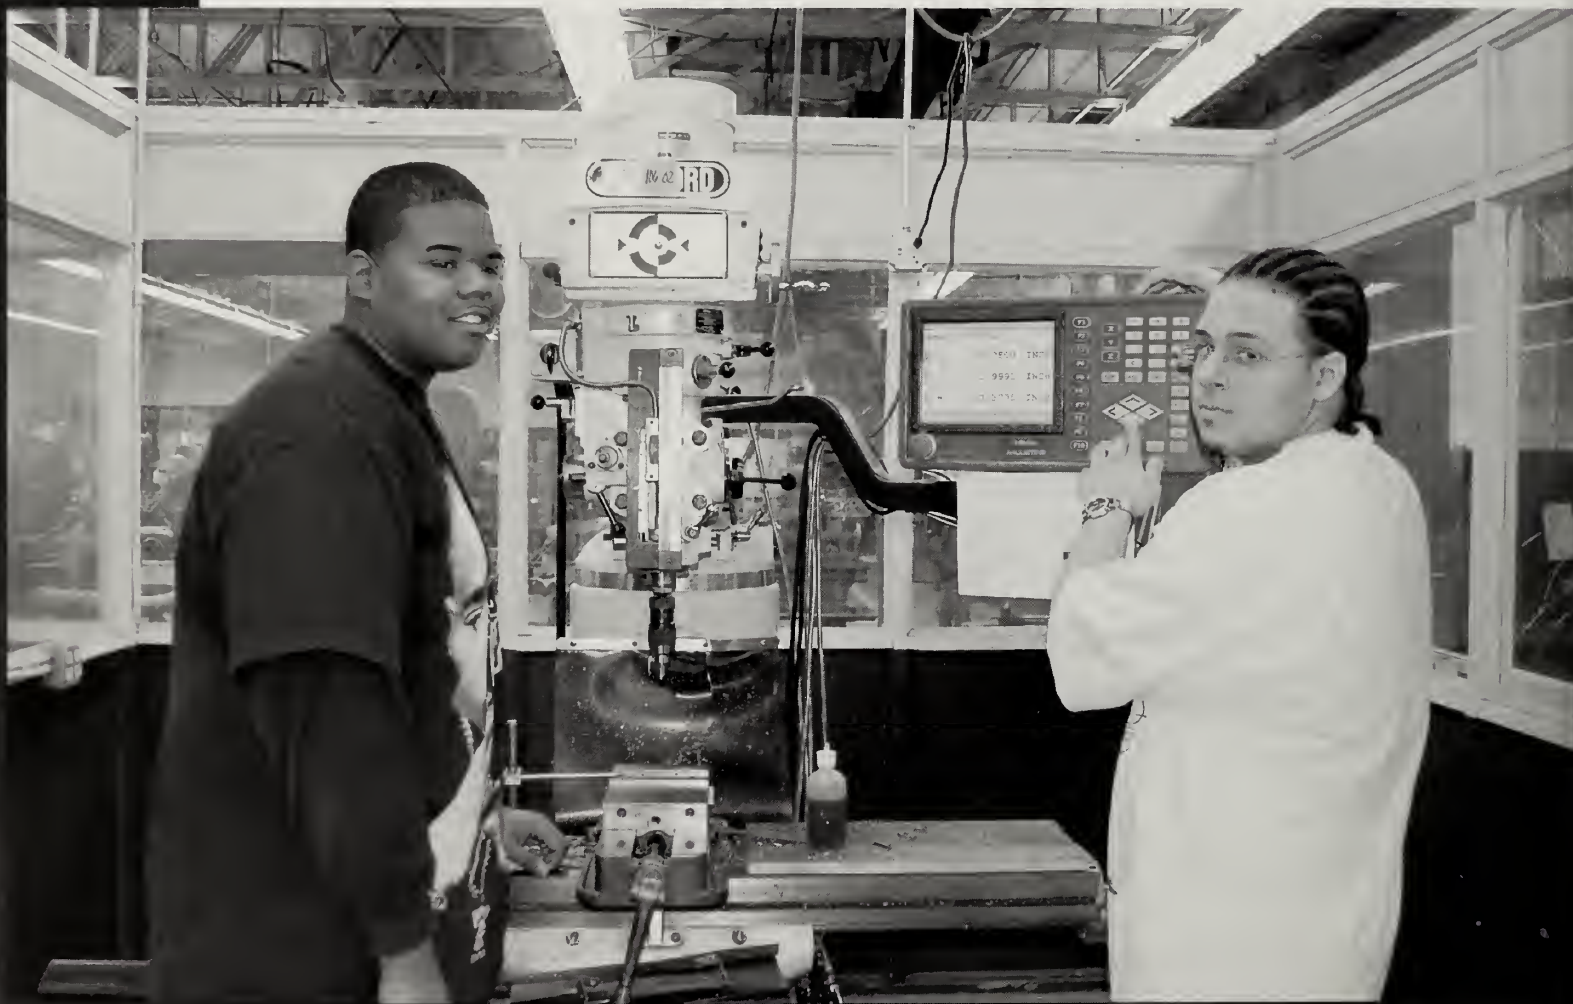

By Junior year, CTE students choose a CTE program they want to focus on. Auto tech, computer aided design, and metal sculpting are among the possibilities. Also, wood working, culinary arts, metal fabrication, and working in the greenhouse are popular.

When Senior year finally arrives, the CTE program keeps a close eye on career placement. Students leave school on co-op to go to a job they chose junior year. The teachers provide the push and drive to get the job done right in class. If not for CTE, many students might still be looking for what they want to pursue for a career. CTE is for everybody, so if you're looking to explore many different job options, try CTE on for size. You never know; you might find what you like.

-Jessica Buchanan

Joe Blair checks the circuit breaker box to see if it is working. Jeremy Arsenault is installing an electrical outlet box. Both focused professionally on their work.

In machine shop, seniors Jordan Craigwell and Yamil Canales work together on this big machine. They program the mill to begin working on a tractor part for landscaping. These two make a great team.

Jason Keeley, a horticulture student, exhibits his finished product. He skillfully displays the corsage he made.

Ed Phelps, a senior in auto tech, works hard under the hood. He is removing the engine from this "97" Nissan Maxima.

Jason Freitas, a sophomore in carpentry, works hard at sanding this french leg. He's sanding it for a coffee table that is a work in progress.

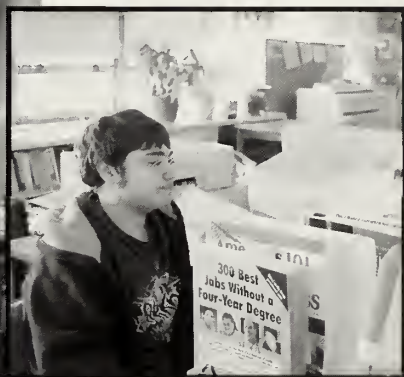

Landscaping student, Craig Czuchra, finishes checking the oil in this bad boy. This Ford Tractor is in good working conditions now.

Culinary student Steve Freisberg prepares a soufflé. It's for the students and teachers dessert at Compaccinos. It looks really delicious.

Senior Jamie Perez, of welding, is performing the task of welding a pipe.

John Kozikowski

This is Mr Kozikowski a few years ago when he was just starting as a young, sophisticated teacher.

Dr. John Kozikowski began his career back in 1970. He worked in many school districts. He brought "Tech Prep English" to the English department and was English department supervisor for most of the 90's. He was one of the many directors in the program "Continuing EDU" and became Academic Career & Technical Education Coordinator. Although he retired during the 2006 school year, he will be remembered as a hard-working administrator with big ideas, attention to detail, and complete respect for the teachers he supervised. He did great things during his career at Chicopee Comp. When new teachers entered the school, he had no problem jumping right in to give them all the help he could. As a CTE administrator, he always had his head turned up, a smile on his face, and a good attitude. This was like a second home to him, and all the students and staff were like his second family.

Mr. Kozikowski enjoys his last days of working at Chicopee Comp High School. He retired, as he wished, without fanfare. His ideas for CTE made our program one of the most forward-looking in the state.

Getting A Jump Start

Tires, motors, engines and more. When you have a problem with your car, who do we look to? They're always in the garage working on those cars. Auto tech works hard at what they do. The type of work they do includes disassembling and assembling engines, rotating tires, aligning wheels, diagnosing, and much more. They pretty much fix anything you can possibly fix on a car. In the end, the cars leave the shop running. We know we can count on the skills of the students for a job well done.

Of course we can't just give all the credit to the students. If it wasn't for Mr. Syriac's and Mr. Williams's knowledge of cars, there wouldn't have been an auto tech at all. The students also save money when in this class. Instead of rushing over to a handy man mechanic, they have their own skills to fix their own cars. Many of the seniors will take this course further with them in life.

As they leave high school, there are many jobs and careers open in this field of work. Some of the jobs open to the seniors after graduation include dealership technician, independent shop keeper, muffler shop keeper, Jiffy Lube employee, car sales person, transmission specialist, and many more. Many will achieve their dreams after high school, but that's not all they take when they leave. They take the good times and memories, but most of all they take the knowledge of cars!

-By: Jessica Buchanan

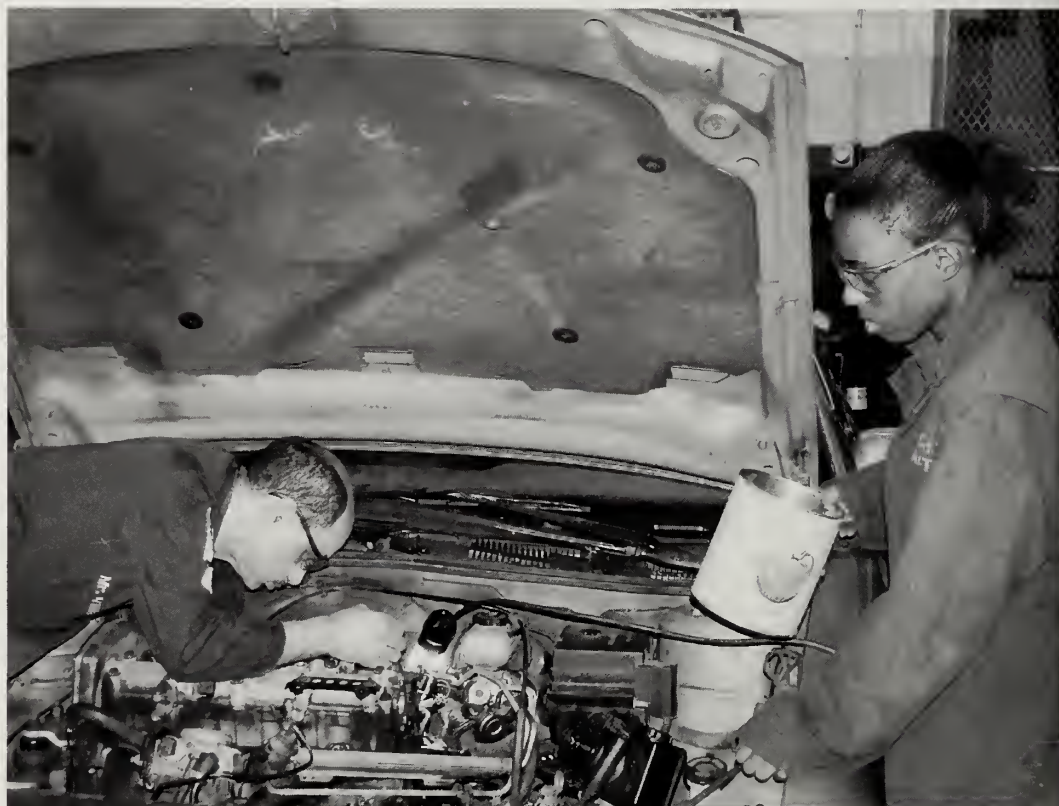

Ed Phelps, a senior, tries to make a get-away in this truck. He demonstrates how difficult it is to get the truck out of the shop with out damaging it.

Jesus Torres leans on this car to show off the hard work he has done.

Mr. Williams works with senior Cianna Tripp to help remove the hose attached to the engine. She said, "It's not as easy as it looks."

Chris Peek and Jason Laboy take a step back from what they are doing. These two display teamwork and friendship.

Let's Get Ready To Build

Jason Freitas, a sophomore, demonstrates how to measure this wood. He explains, "It's for my coffee table in the making, and this is just the beginning!"

Saws, drills, hammers and nails are most of the basic tools in carpentry class. Those who enter this career tech class begin as amateurs and build up the skills to be carpenters. Many students learn by doing work hands-on. They learn with power tools, hand tools and even on field trips to job sites. Thanks to Mr. Styckewicz and Mr. Archambault, the students have gained knowledge and skills for the art of woodworking.

It's really not that hard to hammer a nail into wood, but it takes time and patience to put your skills into action and build a house from a solid foundation up. Besides the knowledge of tools, they learn different methods of work. They learn how to lay a foundation, lay a floor, place a wall, and mount ceiling framing. During the cold winter months, they work on projects indoors at job sites. If you've been to Szot park, the gazebo built there was built by ours truly, the carpentry class.

So to top things off, they also learn to use measuring, calculating and advanced equipment to help with jobs along the way.

Many jobs are open to the field of carpentry such as commercial and residential construction, cabinet making and furniture building. These are just some of the many jobs in this career field. Many will seek jobs in this field after high school. Many will go far in life. They don't just leave high school with a grade and a few splinters; they leave with an education, an idea of what they want to pursue and the skills and craft for working with wood.

-By: Jessica Buchanan

Mr. Styckewicz explains to Brendon Labrecque the next steps in going about his project. Brendon took his instructions very well.

Mike Lipinsky shows off his skills on the drum sander. He focuses on aligning the edge of the wood to the edge of the table to get a smooth job well done.

Design and Manufacturing

The machine shop senior gang is still going strong four years later. The seniors are busy with their senior project; they are building something different that they designed with little or no help from their teachers. Some of the projects include dominoes, clocks, a mini dresser, and a scooter. After designing them, they started to build them. At the same time, they write up their projects with help in their English 12 classes. Sure, teachers help find resources and help with the writing process, but most of the time teachers just stand back to watch the creativity take over. They say the students are quite independent, and they're proud of their juniors and seniors.

This is the art outside of machine shop. It has been there since the shop opened; no one knows if there will be art outside the shops in the new school.

The teachers say they can't get enough of their "troublemakers."

Shop has more than building projects. There is written work, blue prints, as well as working with the machines.

The seniors work hard on their senior projects. Their teacher expected nothing less of them.

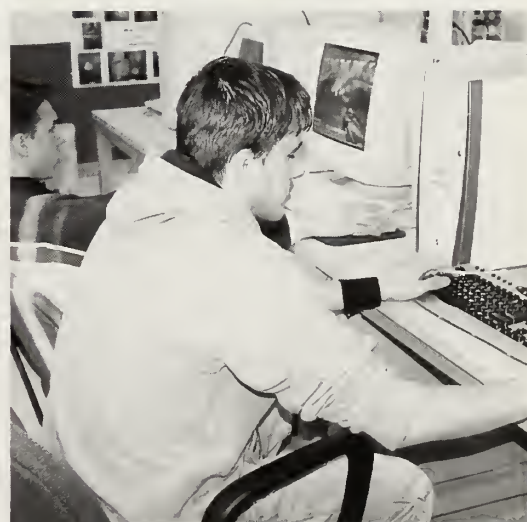

It's Electric

The Cisco Networking juniors and seniors have been busy over the last two years learning to network computers and working with LAN environment, fiber cables, CAT, and wireless systems. They learn about all of the technology they need to get jobs or to go to college. They are looking at a future in computer science and information technology. They will take the CCNA test for computer networking certification. Their teacher, Mr. Ziembra, believes they will do very well, and he is very proud of his students' achievements.

While there are not many juniors in the class, they still do very well and keep right on track with the seniors. The only complaint is that the freshmen are trying to sneak in some games.

CISCO SYSTEMS
Room # 107
Cisco Networking Academy
Mr. Ziembra

Cisco networking is work that is as fun as play. It is all about the computers to them.

A Shocking Good Time

This is the last year that Electrical class will be in the old Comp building. Right now, they have old equipment, old tools, but some of the same students. The Electrical students of Comp seem to have it easier than most. They have their career tech class the majority of the day. This makes it easier for them to get more done. However, the teachers of the career tech students don't let them slack off; they make sure their students are always busy with a project or related academic work. With that in mind, the students who are involved with electrical are more than just friends; they are more like one big family. Most of these students have been together since freshman year, and when someone needs a helping hand, there are more than enough offers.

- Michelle Bergeron

The artwork outside of electrical was made by a member of the class of 2006. A lot of time and effort was put into this. Although the students in electrical may be learning, they also have a sense of humor about some things.

The junior and senior electrical classes spend so much time together they are like one big family.

These are the ones who put up with it all: Mr. Leary, Mr. Adasienicz, and Mr. Aickelin. They are always around to lend a helping hand.

This is the ugly side of electrical. Justin Lamontagne, Brandon Houle and Nick Dussault are all working in theory class learning how to build their projects.

Over in a electrical, Mike Turgeon and Zach Beaulieu work away on a Cisco project. All the teachers agree that Zach and Mike were trouble when they first arrived at Comp. Although they are still trouble, they have made it pretty far in this class and will be able to work outside of the school.

It's Hot

Welding class is not only challenging, but it also builds character. Many students who participate in the welding program here at CCHS can tell you everything you will need to know about welding. From safety rules to the fundamentals of how to weld properly, the welding instructors Mr. Gassnola and Mr. Goulet seem to cover it all. In the basement of the school, senior welders are busy designing and welding their senior projects. One of those seniors is Jamie Perez, who designed a beautiful table for his senior project. The top took him almost a month to make. "There are more promising senior projects on the way," said Mr. Goulet, who's very proud of the senior class.

Hidden away behind his shield is Viktor Gavrilov. He was said to be one of the best, according to one of his classmates.

Down in welding, sophomore Stefan Kerrian works away on his project while others await their turn. Stefan has been putting a lot of time into his project. Although he is only a sophomore, he seems to be doing quite well.

Mr. Gassnola is at it again teaching another generation of welders the safety of saws. Mr. Gassnola has been teaching here at Comp for quite some time now and enjoys every minute of it.

Sparks fly as Josue Hernandez sands down the corners of his frame. This sanding method needs just the right amount of concentration.

Cooking Up Success

Knives, bowls, and stove tops, oh my! Though many people have been to restaurants, few people know what actually goes on inside the kitchen. The students in the culinary arts program know exactly what it's like to work in the kitchen of a restaurant. Every week, the students and their teachers, Mr. Cerpovicz and Mr. Krawczyk, open the school's own restaurant, Compaccino's. This restaurant typically feeds about one third of the school's population! They serve a plethora of different meals. The most popular meal is breakfast, which consists of bacon, eggs, baked goods, pancakes, oatmeal, and other morning favorites. Its popularity is probably due to the fact that barely anyone has the time to eat a good breakfast these days.

When they are not preparing food for the next Compaccino's meal, the students learn very important medical and scientific aspects of the culinary art. They learn about safe food handling and the diseases that can be caused by improperly handled food. As juniors, the students try to earn a Servsafe certification. By earning this certificate, they have a better chance of being accepted into culinary school and ultimately getting a job in the industry.

All of the information and skills gained in the culinary arts class will help these students who are on their way to becoming master chefs.

-By: Jessica Buchanan
& Steve Freisberg

Senior Jennifer Gorneault scoops some flour for a recipe. Flour is one of the key ingredients of many of the items that Compaccino's serves every week!

Seniors Samantha Cervonayco, Jennifer Solano, and Grizel Vargas show off the appetizers. Senior year in Compaccino's is all about appetizers and garnishes.

Junior Sam Ayers is working diligently on his gingerbread house. It's bigger than the others so he has to be a little more careful than everyone else.

Seniors Lindsay Desotell, Steve Freisberg, Jennifer Gorneault, Jennifer Solano, and Chad Hart are all eager to display their hors d'oeuvres.

Sketching Our Futures

Keith Hart copies a blue print design for a gazebo. He's doing such a great job.

"Drafting is more than just pointless little lines on a screen. The process of drafting helps architects to build stronger, longer-lasting houses and other buildings." This is the basis of the work done by drafting students such as Richard Pelletier, who is one of the seniors in the program.

The students in CCHS's drafting program may spend most of their time at computers, but that does not mean that they are not doing work. They are busy designing buildings and doing free-lance work for other members of the faculty and administration. They have also done minor jobs such as designing useful tools such as knobs for the stoves in the culinary arts kitchen.

Students in the drafting program have the opportunity to go into jobs such as building construction, product design, manufacturing, and other similar fields.

Professional architects have one of the most important jobs in the process of building. While drafting is not actually assembling a building, the quality of the blueprint ultimately determines whether or not the final building will be fit to stand.

The product design and manufacturing field is a huge employer of drafters. Think about it; every manufacturer needs someone to design their products. Without drafters, there would be little variety in the products we see on the market. The CCHS drafting program is busy helping to provide this work force.

Jessica Buchanan and Steve Freisburg

Adam Theroux works hard on his design. His concentration doesn't look like its going to be broken today.

Mr. Ingram explains the dormer design for a residential structure. Keith Hart listens carefully.

Horticulture

Many students walk past the windows going to the library and wonder what that funny little building is. That is our greenhouse. In the greenhouse they do many projects that involve plants and flowers. Students who attend Compaccino's for lunch on Thursday will notice a beautiful floral arrangement on the table. The arrangements are a generous donation from Ms. Ceason's horticulture class.

If students take this class freshmen year, they will explore many plants and flowers, their biology, how to put together floral arrangements, and how to make a corsage. In horticulture, Ms. Ceason will show her students how to care for the pond filled with Koi fish. Horticulture may seem like a simple job, but a lot of time and effort is put into helping the life of plants and flowers bloom into the full adult stage of their life.

As students enter their senior year, they will explore and learn about the many jobs available. Seniors will go off campus to a job they picked. Many jobs are offered to seniors in horticulture. For example, jobs to choose from include a florist, a farmer, a landscaper, and so many more. So as we leave school, many students will pursue their goals in the horticulture field.

-Jessica Buchanan

Ire Bre'vard is very carefully removing dead leaves from this beautiful plant. She looks very focused and hard at work.

Tyler Cieccko focuses on not missing any plants. He waters peace lilies and aloe.

Jason Keeley works on untangling the roots. It doesn't look like you could break his concentration.

Ricardo Rosado, Jason Keeley, and Mike Harris work together to untangle the roots of these plants. These plants are Sansevierera, Dracena, and Jade.

Landscaping

If you are interested in a career in landscaping, you are just in luck.

Landscaping is a program offered to students at Comp. They deal with much of the work needed outside of our school. They care for the flowers planted all around the school. They also remove leaves and twigs from all around the school. This is all done by our landscaping class.

Seniors in landscaping attend to many off campus jobs. The job they are working on now is at Streiber Elementary, and it has to do with land clearing, and renovation of the lawn. Freshmen entering this class get to start by learning the basics of landscaping. They will also get well acquainted with the machines and tools needed for the various jobs and tasks.

Seniors will leave to go off to jobs for co-op. Mr. Mislak is very helpful in getting seniors off-campus jobs with big corporations. Some jobs offered to seniors are Design, Maintenance, Irrigation, and Installation.

-Jessica Buchanan

Senior Tony Dechristopher drives this big boy out of the garage. He's taking this Bob Cat out for a stroll around the school to help with maintenance.

Brett Deroscheres demonstrates his skill directing this Ford tractor out of the garage. "Move out of the way because big Brett's coming through!," he says.

Scott Patterson tightens the nut after fixing the belt on this lawn mower. He's sure putting a lot of elbow grease into that one.

This landscaping crew takes a step back from their hard work. They gather around this tractor for a short break.

Teachers & Staff

The Teachers at CCHS work hard. Many are veteran teachers, but it seems like many more are new teachers. Which do students like best? Good teachers! Mr. Lamothe teaches Modern World History, and he is one of the new teachers this year. Mr. Couture is also a new teacher; he teaches physical science, and students love going to his class because he is funny. He always gets students to laugh.

Then you have the teachers that have been teaching for years, such as Mrs. Gil, who teaches entrepreneurship. She also teaches marketing. Marketing students go on trips to learn about being an entrepreneur.

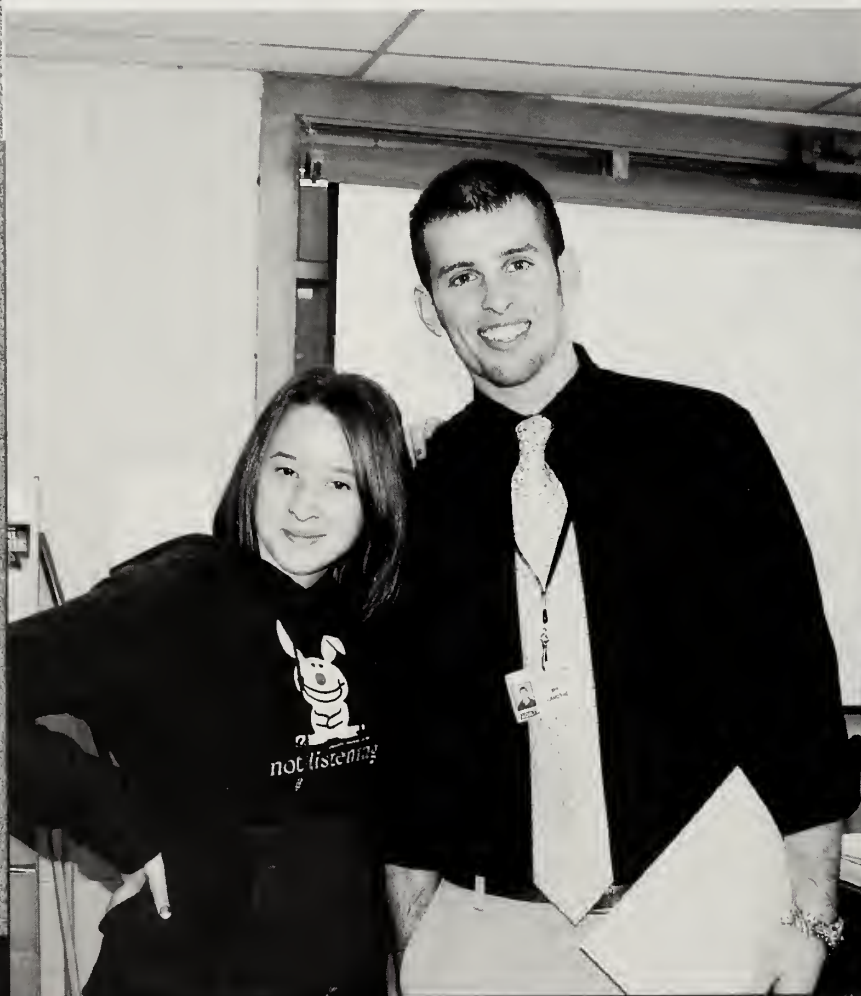

Of course there are teachers in the middle, like Ms. Potorski who teaches English 11 standard and honors. She also teaches ELA MCAS Review, and she really cares about her students.

- Desiree Roda

English teacher, Ms. Potorski, has students draw little pictures to help them remember vocabulary words.

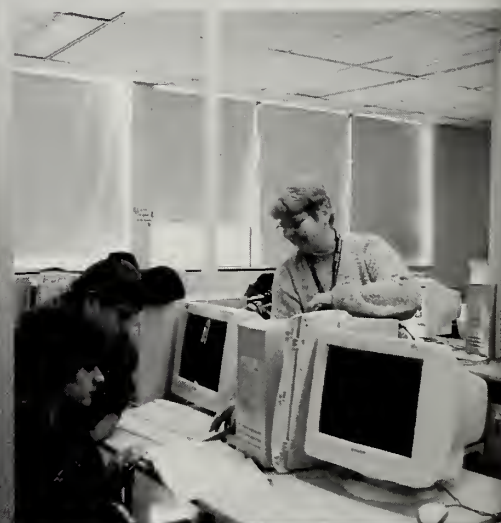

Mr. Lamothe is visited by one of his students from first period. Students always pop in to visit their favorite teachers.

Mr. Couture is having some fun with a student because class would be boring without having some fun time. "I don't know how I trick the students into liking me, but I hope I don't do it again next year," said Mr. Couture.

Mr. Scheurfeld is visited by Julio Sanchez. Students love his class and can't stay away.

Mrs. Gil is watching over some of her students as they study during one of her classes. "I love my students... I love them all. There is a diamond in everybody," she says.

Building and Grounds Maintenance

People who hear about building and grounds maintenance usually ask "that's landscaping, isn't it?" As a matter of fact, it isn't. Buildings and Grounds Maintenance students learn to clean up the area around our school, Lambert Lavoie, and other areas. They work hard all year round making sure our grounds are clean. They blow leaves, shovel snow, and mow grass. They learn employable skills. They also take care of the playground at Lambert Lavoie, which they also helped build a few years ago. Landscaping, however, is a CTE course here Comp.

Telecom Madness

This is the one class where madness truly applies.

The students in this class have a two full periods to create art and learn the techniques to make a great movie. The chaotic environment helps these students understand and get the feel of the fast paced environment of the entertainment field. Students are also allowed to be themselves and be creative.

"We have fun and freedom, but it's the work that makes it worth going to class. When I finally make a big movie, I will come back and thank Mr. Smith for everything that he has taught me," explains Michelle Bergeron. This class requires determination and passion, to become successful.

Colonial Day in the Library

This year, an interdisciplinary team, led by English teacher Ms. Goudreault and Social studies mastermind Mr. Jendrysik, dressed in colonial era costume to re-enact the life-style of the early years of this nation. Craftsmen, religious leaders, Native Americans, and indentured servants were portrayed at the event which was held in the library in November. According to the teachers, students put in a great deal of their own time to create the costumes and decorations.

Mr. Jendrysik, Victoria Kravchenko and Kellie Dwyer are ready for a typical day in the colonies. Mr. Jendrysik and Ms. Goudreault along with the librarians, Ms. Crowther and Ms. Danek, organized the day long educational event.

Spotlight

During welding Mr. Gassnola teaches a group of freshmen how to use a table saw. He dedicates his time to helping students learn proper techniques to handling the potentially dangerous tools.

The Best Efforts...

Sports '06-07

The athletes at Chicopee Comprehensive High School bring pride and school spirit to our school. They represent our school by wearing their blue and gold uniforms on the field, court or gymnasium floor; and they give it their best!

Because of the devotion of their coaches, every team learns leadership, teamwork, commitment and responsibility. Despite long hours of practice, these teams give all of their heart to the team and still have to do all their class work. Throughout the season, they become not just a team but long lasting friends.

- Brittany Bourdo

The cheerleaders have brought tons of school spirit to the rallies and to all the games. They did an especially great job cheering on the football players when they took the sword home and when they won the Super Bowl!!

"I hope I become the captain of this team next year, because I have been on varsity since I was a freshmen!," said Chris Deering, #2, on the varsity soccer team.

The boys varsity team pumps up Danny Tremblay right before a big game. This is a tradition that they do before every game just to get them in the mood to kick some butt!

"I really enjoyed my two years of running cross country and found great success with the team this year," said Joe Krzystofik.

The girls varsity soccer team has some strong tough soccer players on the field. They have worked so hard, practiced five days a week, but it all paid off because they had a great season.

Jennifer Buchanan, a 4th year player, And Amanda Major are the two captains of the girls varsity volleyball team. They both were important players in the starting line up.

Let's Go Colts!

The girls varsity volleyball team worked really hard this year and had an awesome season with great teamwork. The team made it to the playoffs thanks to the help from the coach, Mr. Dobson, and the cheerful fans!

Along with the gymnastic team: Carly Siano, Amanda Major, and Jessica Buchanan sat down to watch other teams compete in the final place.

"We had fun and worked hard all season long."

-Dan Roberge

"If there ever was a time to try hard, now was the time."

-Reed Sutherland

A Lasting Effort

There is never a "break" when it comes to the competitive sport of cross country. It is both physically and mentally demanding to its competitors. The boys cross country team only had five runners this year and still managed to pull off three league wins and went on to compete in the Western Massachusetts Cross Country Championships.

Despite the low numbers, each member put in a hundred percent effort and strived to achieve their best contributions for the team. The runners knew that all their performances were important to the success of the team. They practiced with this attitude every day at the Chicopee State Park.

The team was led by the lone senior, captain Joseph Krzystofik. The rest of the squad was completed with a hard-working bunch of underclassmen. Freshmen Reed Sutherland and Wesley Clark joined the two returning sophomores, Dan Roberge and Pat Lemelin. Senior Joe Krzystofik was a big contributor to the success of the team by posting a top ten finish in every race and having two league wins during the season. Returnees, Dan Dan Roberge and Pat Lemelin, both took seconds and even minutes off their best times from their freshman seasons.

Although the team did not have a winning record, each member achieved their own personal goals throughout the season. The runners grew both as individuals and as a team.

Their team performance got immensely stronger towards the end of the season at meets, such as Pioneer Valley Interscholastic Championships and Western Massachusetts Cross Country Championship. At these meets, all the runners showed how their efforts in the regular season paid off. Losing only one senior, the four underclassmen will make up the strong core for the team next season.

-Joseph Krzystofik

Wesley Clark, Joe Krzystofik, and Dan Roberge warm-up just before the start of their race at Stanley Park.

The last hill at Forest Park's 2.8 mile course is quite challenging to its runners. Senior Joe Krzystofik uses his strength to attack this hill and pass his opponent.

Sophomore Dan Roberge keeps his head high as he reaches the last half mile mark. This is a point in a race when there is some relief because the race is almost over.

The start of a cross country race is a very exciting and anticipated moment. This pack of Comp boys are ready to lead the charge into the race.

Save The Best Run For Last

The team huddles and breaks on three. They get in a line and wait for the gun. Running full speed, feeling the rush of the wind through their hair, there's no turning back now.

Racing towards the finish line, their anticipation building, the runner has no care in the world except the finish line.

The cross country team worked hard all season. They finished the season with six wins and two losses. Coach Thayer encouraged her racers to have the drive and ambition to win. Even if they had some off days, the team members still cheered each other on. This team members always had positive attitudes.

The season ended but not in disappointment. In the end, they gained more than just a time and score. They gained friendships, memories, and the best kind of sportsmanship. The team gave special thanks to their coach for training them to race their very best. Team members explained that she never yelled or put her racers down, even if they had an 'off' day or race.

Team Captains Becka Boisseau, Sarah Beaudoin, and Lindsay Ferrette.

Before the big race, the team huddles in a circle. They count to three and all at once shout "Go team go!" With adrenaline pumping, they are ready to race.

It was a long run through Forest Park, and Sarah Beaudoin runs the final stretch for the team. Racing for the finish, exhausted in action, she's only focused on one thing-- finishing.

Running their course with the wind at their feet, nothing is stopping our runners today.

Anxiously awaiting their race, the team members do an extra stretch before the gun is fired.

A Lasting Effort

The crowd is cheering, the player is tired, there are only a few minutes left in the game, and the team is down by ten, so what does he do? If the player was a member of the boys varsity basketball team, he would give it his all. That is what the members of the team did this year.

The boys started off strong at their first game but then hit a small rough patch.

Despite this, the team stuck together and put their best efforts forward at every game. They played like a team and passed, dribbled and even dunked their way to the playoffs. Co-Captain Ken Labrie commented on how this season went: "We worked hard every day, but we just fell a little short of our goal. The season was great, and we had a lot of fun throughout it. We also had a great group of players this year."

Luckily, the team had a dedicated coach, Mr. Franczyk, who challenged the players and helped them to play to the best of their abilities. Co-Captain Ken Labrie said this about the coach: "he always pushed us to be the best. He encouraged us to play hard and have fun while we did it."

Without the efforts of the coaches, the cooperation of the players with each other, the hard work, and their dedication to the team, the Comp Colts might not have had such a successful and memorable season.

- Sam Langevin

- Lasharie Weems

Senior Ken Labrie races down the sidelines, ball in hand, and looks for an open teammate. The team had good sportsmanship this year and had a good season.

The crowd goes wild as Keith Hart "makes it rain". He shows the competitors how it is done by easily dunking.

Junior Mike Dearing keeps his head high as he searches for an open teammate to make a pass. Dearing holds the position as center and has been a valuable asset to the team.

Katelynn Hamelin guards a Pacer while playing defense. Katelynn is a senior, and this will be her last year to represent the Colts.

Seniors, Whitley Smiley, Katelynn Hamelin and Julianne Labrecque gathered on 'Senior Day' for the varsity players.

During a jump ball, the Colts attempt to hold off the Pacers to recover the ball. The Colt's season seemed to reflect how well the team bonded together.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

The Girls Varsity Basketball team has made significant strides this season. The team went 7-13, an improvement from previous seasons. Coach Alex Vyce commented on the team's improvement: "Our attitude was much better. As for our work ethic, I was pleased with the total effort of the team." The team's effort led to the team's first win against Agawam, proving the girls were ready to face the "traditionally successful team," added Coach Vyce. Though the team suffered a number of losses, they never lost hope. They proved their skills at the end of the season when they defeated Belchertown and East Longmeadow after a short losing streak. The improvement could be due to how close the team has become over the past few seasons. "I will miss everyone!," Senior Katelynn Hamelin remarked about the team, "I will never forget how Frances Figerios taught me how to 'Walk it Out'."

--Victoria Curto

Junior Marissa Montemagni gracefully shoots the ball toward the net. Skillfully, it went in as a perfect swish, against our cross town rivals, Chicopee High.

Whitley Smiley takes a deep breath before she shoots her two foul shots. When the pressure is on, Whitley knew how to handle herself and remain calm.

This Comp player takes her time to shoot since her adversaries left her wide open. Being quick on your feet is important, but having accuracy is better.

"I feel that we have laid the groundwork for success in the next couple of seasons. I am very optimistic." Coach Alex Vyce

Sophomore Tricia Ruell and Senior Joe Krzystofik were both named captains at the end of the season.

A Team with the Best Spirit

The Chicopee Comp boys swim team had a very successful season this year. It was a larger team than previous seasons and had good upperclassmen depth. The team kept a record of 12-1 throughout the regular season and went on to be league co-champions.

At the Western Massachusetts Championships, the team placed 9th out of 24 teams. Seniors Joe Krzystofik and Scott Patterson, along with underclassmen Tim Ramos, Keith Godek, and Aaron Starke went on to compete in the state meet. Patterson said, "I couldn't have asked for a better senior year. We had a strong team and were co-champs of our division. It is the last year that we will swim in the pool, and to leave it with a championship my senior year means a lot to me and the team."

The Comp girls swim team had another building year. Along with a new coach, Coach Cushing, the team added many newcomers to the team. The new swimmers added to an already solid group of girl returners. They were able to capture five wins in the regular season. Two of these were against their biggest rival, Chicopee High. These two meets are anticipated throughout the season by all the swimmers, and they are especially motivated at these races.

The girls went on to compete in the sectional meet with the boys team. Sophomore Tricia Ruell was the only girl to swim in an individual event at the meet when she swam in the 100 yard backstroke. Maryanne Grey, Anna Gibson, Tanya Roy, Kim Doubt, and Becky Masse joined in on three of the relays.

The season ended with a great accomplishment for the team. Both the girls and the boys team were awarded the Team Sportsmanship Award within their league. This was awarded at the Coaches' Association Banquet for Western MA Swimming. Also at the banquet, Joe Krzystofik received the Raymond Deforge Scholar-Athlete Award for his accomplishments in school and swimming. The team should be proud.

“ Overall we had a young team this year-- a good group of guys that worked hard and have come a long way. Things look good for next season. ”

“ This year they were a close knit team. The girls supported one another, were prepared for practice everyday and went out and did their best at the meets! ”

- Coach Thayer

Girls and Boys Indoor Track

It's not all about running! Indoor track consists of the 2 mile, 1 mile, 1000 meters, 55 meter dash, the 600 meter, the 300 meter, and various field events including shot-put, high jump, long jump, and hurdles. Every event takes hard work, dedication and a lot of practice. In indoor track, an athlete is allowed to do two track events and two field events. In order for these competitors to get pumped up before meets, they usually sing on the way to the meets in the bus, stretch, or just tune out from the world with music.

This year, the boys and girls indoor track team were very closely knit. The shot put guys helped the shot put girls build up their strength, and the long distance guys and girls ran together. The season began at the end of November and ended in the middle of February. Most of the team used indoor track as a way to get ready and stay in shape for their spring sport, but some find it a competitive sport in its own right. Whatever your reason for joining indoor track, it's always a place to meet new people and share a bond with a team that you will always remember.

-- Amanda Kenney

While hurling herself over the high jump bar, Chelsea Mancini focuses on getting her whole body over. It usually takes weeks of practice before getting this right!

Sarah Craig, also known as Crunk by her teammates, gives it her all as she sprints the last of the 300 meter race. Sarah's comical personality gave the team some memorable laughs.

Rebecca Albrecht paces herself during the 2 mile run. The key to the two mile run is all about the breathing technique-- in through your nose and out through your mouth.

This group of boys makes up the Chicopee Comp Indoor Track Team. These guys put forth their best efforts during their meets.

As he plunges his feet to the sand, Ralphie Rivera makes sure he sticks his landing. Long jump is all about leg power, and after this jump, he definitely proved himself.

Junior Rick Adams stays to the inside of the track as he waits for the perfect moment to pass the West Springfield runner. Passing your opponent is very important, but remaining ahead by the end of the race is even more important.

Our Comp girls await the gunshot before the two mile race. The time before the race is very nerve-racking, but having your friends there to calm your nerves is always helpful.

After releasing the shot from her hand, Lindsay Leavy watches where it lands. This season Lindsay qualified for the PVIAC Championships by throwing the 8lb shot over 28 feet.

This year the boys team is led by five seniors. From left to right: Randy Belisle, co-captain Tim Day, Alvin Arce, co-captain Steve Laurin, and Kevin O'Brien. These guys had to step it up this year and assist the younger guys so they could succeed, too.

Sarah Craig is at it again! Sarah is always trying to make her teammates laugh, but this time, Lindsay Leavy joined in a theatrical dance in the girl's locker room.

"Playing like a team led us to the playoffs."

-Christina Martin # 9

"I'm really happy with our results this season."

-Shannon Heroux # 3

Bump, Set, Spike!

Led by coach Dobson and captains Jen Buchanan and Amanda Major, the girls varsity volleyball team came out with 12 wins and 8 losses. The team consisted of two seniors, Jen Buchanan and Tanya Turgeon; six juniors Shannon Heroux, Maryanne Grey, Amanda Major, Stefanie Meyer, Alexis Padua, Grace Ramos, and Cassandra Roy; two sophomores, and Brittany Dussault and Christina Martin; and one freshman, Erin Sweeney.

Practices started in late August in the uncomfortably hot gym. They spent many long hours together practicing in hopes of having a successful season. At first the girls had a rough start, however, they were never discouraged and became determined to work harder. All the positive attitudes and dedication paid off in the end. They finished with a 12-8 season and most rewarding, the playoffs.

The reason for their success was because they were like a family. You would constantly see the team together in the hallways or running to Starbucks before their practice.

It was a ritual for the girls to get their desired caffeine boost.

They also had fun bus rides driving their coach nuts with their off tune singing. Because the team was so closely knit, they defeated their cross town rivals, Chicopee High both times they faced them 3-0. Such success was a satisfying achievement. Underclassman Brittany Dussault #17 worked her way to fulfill her dream of making Western Mass. Her team was very proud.

The team accomplished a lot this season and their hard work paid off. "I will miss the team and cherish all of our memories," said senior Tanya Turgeon. "We worked hard, and I will miss volleyball and the girls a lot!" Exclaimed senior Jen Buchanan.

-Nikki Wagner and Ally Montemagni

Steffanie Meyer #6 has been on the varsity volleyball team since her freshman year. She is a very strong defender who never fails to block a spike. She is a strong team player and is respected by many girls on the team.

Sophomore Brittany Dussault is always a strong middle hitter. As she approaches the volleyball she prepared to spike the ball on the opponents' side. As middle hitter, Brittany often scores many points for the team.

Cassandra Roy, a middle hitter, spikes the ball onto the opponents' side for a point. This Junior never gives up.

Junior Amanda Major, one of the most talented setters and co-captain of the team, is ready to receive the ball. Major #5 always gives a fellow teammate an opportunity to score a point.

Jennifer Buchanan and Tanya Turgeon are both crucial players on the team. These girls are Seniors this year, and they are sad it's already over.

FOREVER A PART OF THE ICE

The defending Fay-Wright Division champions hoped to mount a defense of their league crown, but the loss of six graduated seniors as well as four key members of this year's senior class turned the 2006-2007 season into a rebuilding year. Despite a disappointing 5-13-2 record, Comp was competitive against every opponent, but they were not able to muster enough offense to achieve their preseason goals.

The Colts were led by four dedicated seniors: forwards Kevin Godek and Chris Scheehser and defensemen Brandon Houle and Guy Trask. All four seniors were great leaders who maintained a tremendous work ethic and a never-say-die attitude which became the hallmark of this year's squad. Godek and Scheehser each contributed five goals on the season while Trask and Houle were steady on defense. Junior Brett Salamon led all scorers with 11 goals and 5 assists, followed by classmates Dan LeClair with 5 goals, 9 assists and Jeremy Lafleur with 7 goals, 3 assists. Strong defensive contributions were made by Juniors Ryan Griffin and Kevin Hazynski, as well as sophomores Tyler Gadoury and Josh Chouinard. Bobby Bowden was outstanding in goal, recording over 700 saves while posting a .918 save percentage for the season.

Season highlights included a 3 to 2 upset win over second place Belchertown and a 3 to 0 win and a 3 to 3 tie against crosstown rival Chicopee High.

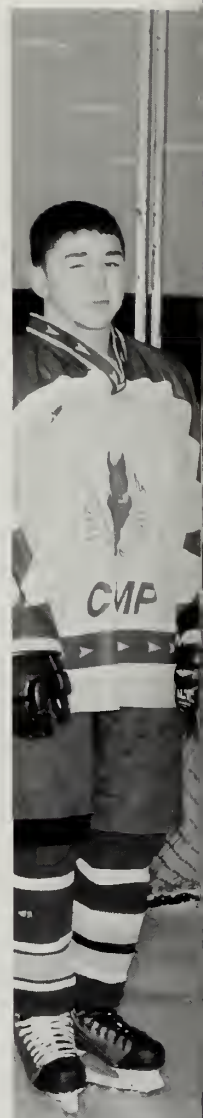

. Their coaches are very proud of their teams work this year, and wish the seniors good luck after graduation and hope to see the rest back next year.

The 2006-2007 Comp hockey team is made up of almost all underclassmen. Most teams would think of this as a disadvantage, but the coaches know that it will only get better from here!

The four senior captains, Kevin Godek, Chris Scheehser, Brandon Houle, and Guy Trask, led this years team.

Speed, guts, and your team's support is all you need to win the game.

Co-ed Cheerleading

The cheerleading squad, under new leadership, had an uplifting season. Their success began with victories in league competitions; they took first place in the co-ed category in the South Hadley qualifier and the Shepard Hill qualifier. They also took first place in the coed category at the CHS and Easthampton invitational. They also won first place in the coed category. Ultimately, they faced no serious challengers at the state regionals, took first place and earned the title Rookie Team of the Year.

One thing that contributed to their success was the presence of four boys on the team.

The new coach, Laura Dillon, has decided to emphasize community service for the cheerleading team. Among their many volunteer activities, they performed for Shriners kids and participated in Chicopee Cheers for Children to raise money for the Shriners'. They also raised money for Toys for Tots and Jimmy's Stuff the Stocking campaign. Their philanthropic efforts were often covered in local newspapers, showing Comp at its best.

The cheerleaders performed at all football games including the Super Bowl and all home basketball games. In addition, they marched in the St. Patrick's Day parade, the Thanksgiving day parade, and the Big E parade.

Coach Dillon managed their success with no assistant coach and no seniors. There were only two juniors and a variety of underclassmen.

- Katie Liucci

- Julio Sanchez

As the Chicopee Comp Colts cheerleading team show their pride for their school, they also show their respect to the country. During the National Anthem, they raise their right arms to their chests to salute the flag.

Three of the cheerleaders show their positive attitudes during the sword game. These girls sure did a great job this year!

As the football coaches make their way to the podium in the gym, the cheerleaders show them a warm welcome! Considering that this was the rally for the football team after they won the Super Bowl, the cheerleaders were extra excited!

GOING THE EXTRA YARD

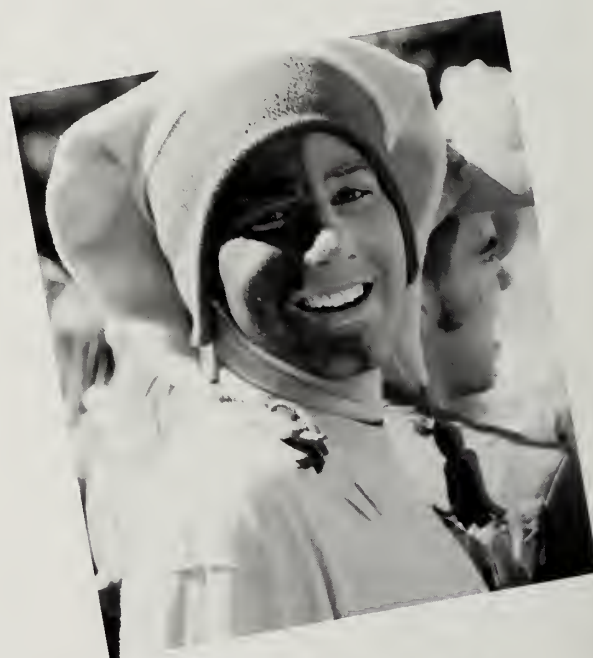

There was no stopping this year's football team. They proved to be very competitive against all the teams that they played. The team was led by the great senior captains, Evan Berneche, Alex Parnicky and Jordan Arroyo, who have been on the team since they were freshman. They kicked off the season with a victory against Chicopee High School with a score of 29 to 6 in the annual sword game. Fans came to watch the biggest team rivalry in Western Mass and were not disappointed as the Colts came out on top with a great win. Senior Alex Parnicky had great defensive sacks that helped the team tremendously. Steve Laurin scored two touchdowns during the game with the help of Evan Berneche. The team did however suffer the loss of senior player Jordan Arroyo who was injured, but they pulled together for the win.

Throughout the season the boys worked very hard with long practices in the rain and hot sun running drills and plays for hours. In the end Coach Marc Schuerfeld led his team to the first Super Bowl Championship against Auburn and won with a score of 8-2. Assistant Coaches Couture, Paquette, and Bourget, two of whom were former CCHS students, helped form the perfect team to help Coach Schuerfeld lead and train this historic group of young players.

The 2006-2007 Chicopee Comp Football Team

Seniors- Alvin Arce, Captain Jordan Arroyo, Chris Baldiga, Captain Evan Berneche, John Ciaccio, Paul Consolmagno, Keith Hart, Steve Laurin, Frank Medero, Kevin Obrien, Captain Alex Parnicky, John Reardon, Kyle Schultski, Ryan Taylor, Justin Twining.

Head Coach Marc Shuerfeld.

#38 Evan Berneche sprints toward the end zone during the sword game. Evan helped the team this season by playing multiple positions.

John Reardon, #2, looks up field as he returns this kick. John's speed was a valuable asset this season.

84 Keith Hart kicks off after scoring a touchdown. Keith's kicking skills proved to be essential throughout the course of the season. Keith had an 87 yard punt in the Superbowl.

#21 Steve Laurin heads for the end zone during the sword game. His running back skills earned him All-Western Mass. honors and helped the Colts win the first Superbowl in school history.

The Colts line may have looked small, but they played like giants during this Superbowl season.

90 Minutes of Determination

The boys soccer team had a tough season with many close games. "As a whole, the team worked well together, but in the end, the goals were just not there," said senior Brendon Gibb about the team's performance this season. The team pulled together for the last game of the season which was the Cup Game against rivals, Chicopee High. "We came together for that game because we knew it was the last game we'd play together. We wanted to go out on a high note," commented senior

Brian Taupier about the win. The win against Chicopee High was the highlight of the season along with a memorable win against Commerce. Tri-Captain Josh Malone was hurt for the big game, but he was very proud of everyone's performance. The other two captains, Dan Benard and Tim Thompson, played hard, and everyone was pleased with the results.

By: Victoria Curto

Before every game, the starting line up runs to midfield. Brian Taupier was cheered on by his teammates and fans as he made his way. "It gets me focused for the game every time," Brian Taupier said about the starting line up tradition.

As a goalie, Timmy Thompson played an important part against the Southwick Rams. He has been playing for the Colts since his freshman year.

Dan Benard takes off at full speed. He ran to assist a winning goal, and he succeeded.

Junior, Chris Dearing, fights for the ball against the Southwick Rams. Chris has played all three years and has been a team player.

Let's Get Ready To Tumble!

The 2006 gymnastics team flipped, tumbled, and vaulted their way through the exciting season.

What they lacked in wins, they tripled in heart and determination. Gymnastics is a sport that requires hard work, strength, flexibility, dedication, and a love of the sport.

The events in a gymnastics meet are: vault, bars, beam, and floor. It's a sport that many underestimate, especially the athleticism required to compete.

This year's team was led by captains Amanda Flowers and Carly Siano. It was a combined team with Chicopee High and is a mix of seniors and underclassman, including four new freshmen and two new sophomores with no previous gymnastics experience. However, they finished the year learning many of the skills required to be successful in this demanding sport. The four seniors Amanda Flowers, Carly Siano, Stefanie Blair, and Jessica

Buchanan all enjoyed a productive year. In particular, Flowers, Siano, and Blair excelled in multiple events. The two captains, Carly Siano and Amanda Flowers competed all four years of High School. Sophomore Alyssa Mullin from Chicopee High had a great season. She finished in the top three in most of her meets.

Sandy Barrett was the coach again for the gymnastics team. "She's always there for us when we need her. She's a great coach," said Amanda Flowers. Katie Jones, from the 2006 graduating class, was the assistant coach. "She always was pushing us no matter what. If we wanted to stop, she was there to push us," Stef Blair added.

This year's team had a fairly even number of athletes from both Comp and High. They worked as one despite coming from rival schools.

Alyssa Mullin is performing a wolf jump. She is only a sophomore but has many years of experience competing in gymnastics.

Carly Siano warms up the beam before a meet. She competes all around.

Saving It for the Green!

This season was all about rebuilding the golf team. After losing almost all of its players and only having two returning players, senior Chris Sawa and sophomore Joe Chapdelaine, the team was in for a great deal of hard work. Chris Sawa was the only player that has dedicated himself to Comp's golf team since he was a freshman. Chris says, "It has been an exciting experience being part of the team all four years of high school, and even though it was a rebuilding season, it was fun with all the guys." Coach added that "All the guys were always competitive and never let me down."

This year's team was made up of both upper and underclassman. Freshman Kyle Eckert, Patrick Brown and Jacob Derosia came into high school and were able to get a feel for the team. Sophomores included Joe Chapdelaine, Ryan Burnette and Bobby Bowden. Juniors included Luke Gawron, Kevin Harris and the only girl on the team, Marissa Montemagni. Also seniors Mike Zak, Kenny Labrie and Tim Day added fresh new talent to the team. Coach Z said, "I am hoping for all the players to return next year for another fun season. I am really looking forward to it."

Keeping his eye on the ball, senior Mike Zak follows through on his perfect shot. Mike is also a lefty which gives his swing a more unique look.

Joe Chapdelaine shows good form just like a pro as he drives the ball toward the green.

Chris Sawa is a super putter. He always makes the shot.

The wonderful golfers of comp warm up before their big match against Chicopee High.

Eyeing the ball, Marissa Montemagni hopes she makes it in.

"Golf is a challenging sport, but when I concentrate I can hit the ball hard and straight. Its all in the hips."
-Kenny Labrie

“Our team was very close knit, and that really helped us out on the field. We trusted one another and were willing to ask for help when we needed it.”

—Katelyn Jopson

“We bonded a lot in and out of practice. There wasn’t any tension or drama between any of the girls which gave the team a sense of unity.”

—Julianne Labrecque

Total Domination

Girls Soccer

This season, the girl’s soccer team dominated the field. They worked as a team on and off the field. When they were on the field, they dribbled the ball down the line and passed the ball effectively. Off the field, the varsity team was as close to one another as ever. Thanks to captains Katelyn Jopson and Julianne Labrecque, the team bonded, and it seemed to affect their game even more. During October, they carved pumpkins and went apple picking together. Their unity lasted throughout the whole season. They managed to get pumped up before every game with a warm up song that they all chanted together: “We stayed fly, no lie, we know this, ballin’!”

Alexa Kaeble guards the ball as she takes it down the line and heads for her opponents goal. Her determination, along with the rest of the team’s determination, helped to conquer every opponent they faced.

One advantage to having such a tight knit team is that they all know each other and are more like a family instead of a team. The team was supposed to go roller skating together, however, team captain Julianne Labrecque became injured and was no longer able to go. Instead, they went to someone’s house and played board games together.

Usually, before the game, the defense would shout, “What?” And the offense would respond by saying, “Wassup?” Team captain, Julianne Labrecque said, “We bonded a lot in and out of practice. There wasn’t any tension or drama between any of the girls which gave the team a unique sense of unity.”

---Amanda Kenney

Dribble, dribble, pass, shoot, and score! Junior Kelly Heise heads for the goal in one last attempt to score. Through perseverance and hard work, this girls soccer team can accomplish anything!

Keep your eye on the ball! Sophomore Leann Rivard distracts her adversary with her juggling skills and sweeps the ball away from her goal.

Julianne Labrecque, steals the ball from her opponent and dribbles the ball up the middle. This is her fourth year playing varsity soccer for Comp, and she is definitely a huge asset, who will be missed next season.

The Best Times After School...

The clubs and activities at Chicopee Comp are a big part of student life. Many students spend their time after school getting involved in the numerous clubs and activities. They are a great place to meet people with the same interests and to share ideas with people like you.

Members of S.A.D.D. are able to discuss their ideas about preventing the harms of substance abuse and able to find ways to discourage young people from risking their lives and health.

There are a large number of clubs that help and benefit the community. The Key Club helps out at the Knights of Columbus every month for the spaghetti suppers. They also spend their time helping out the Kiwanis Club in Chicopee.

Members of the National Honor Society spend countless hours tutoring students at Chicopee Comp and other schools throughout Chicopee.

Students also take part in clubs that allow them to take part in activities that they could do nowhere else. Members of the band and chorus are able to show their musical talents and able to participate in something they enjoy. The Drama Club also lets students show their passion for the performing arts. No matter what you enjoy, there is at least one club or activity for everyone at Chicopee Comp.

- By Joseph Krzystofik

Seniors Amanda Nowak and Sam Downie spend their time after school for S.A.D.D. They say, "S.A.D.D. is a great way to keep kids safe and helps them to stay off the streets."

Chorus at Chicopee Comp serves as entertainment for the people of Chicopee. Victoria Curto, Dan Breton, Olivia Wegman and Rachel Senecal show their talents at the winter concert.

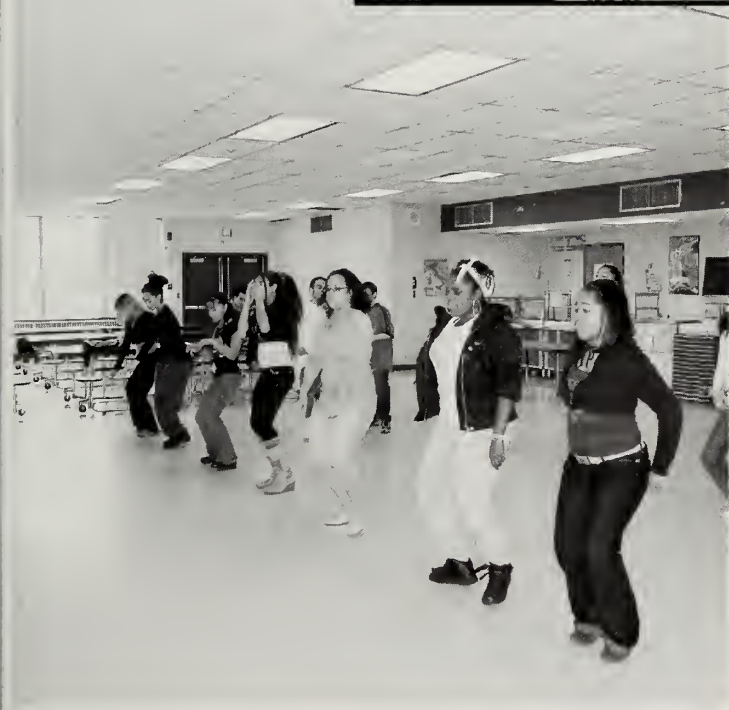

The class officers and advisors spend many hours after school planning events for senior year. They spend as much time at their tasks as any other club.

These band members spend every Thursday practicing their music. They are able to share their talents with the rest of the school.

The Colts Crew is one of the newest clubs at Chicopee Comp. These members spend their time practicing different dances to perform for the rest of the school.

Key Club officers, Olivia Wegman, Sam Downie, and Alison Bach, discuss the upcoming events for volunteering. These members put in many hours of community service throughout the year.

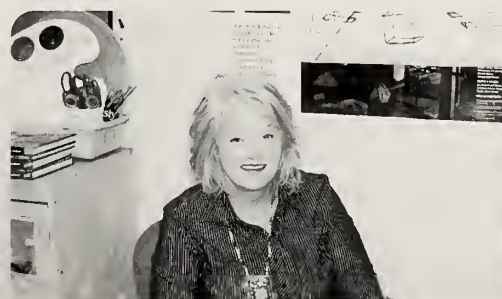

Ms. Parzych is the advisor for the National Honor Society. She spends many hours after school with NHS students and organizes events for the members.

Student Council would not be complete without a teacher in the school to advise it. Mr. Czaparowski and the Student Council helps out with events such as Spirit Week and the Homecoming Dance.

In Charge Of It All...

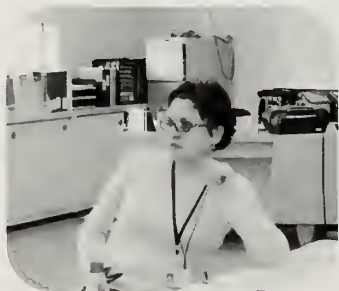

Mrs. Fahey has been a dedicated art teacher at Chicopee Comp. She has also been involved with the art club for many years.

Gay Straight Alliance

The purpose of the Gay Straight Alliance is to provide a safe place for gay, lesbian, bisexual, straight, questioning students and their allies. They plan social and educational activities throughout the year that relate to discrimination, homophobia, and creating a safe school for all students. This year Ms. Lockwood has taken over the reigns of running this after school program. The GSA members participate in The Day of Silence, the Boston Pride March and the Northampton Pride March. Amber Wood, a third year member of GSA said, "I like the atmosphere, the discussions, and I especially like the Day of Silence." John Yiannacopoulos said, "I like the pride marches and just being around the people of GSA and making new friends." Whatever your sexual orientation, GSA is a safe place for high school students to work for equality and respectful treatment for all.

Amber Wood and John Yiannacopoulos engage in a conversation with the rest of the group. They hoped to plan out new events that they can attend.

Ms. Lockwood, the advisor of GSA, gives her advice to the club. Here, they were discussing what to do for one of their next events.

Junior Chelsea Rivera and Steven Hoheb voice their opinions about what to do for their next event to make the community more aware of the GSA and its mission here at Comp. Both students are open to meeting new people and look forward to seeing new members joining Comp's GSA.

Freshman Moses Santa talks to his other clubmates about what activities they can participate in throughout the year.

Key Club

Amanda Kenney, a senior, serves sauce with someone's spaghetti, during the January spaghetti supper. She is the secretary of Key Club this year and has become quite a professional at serving the sauce.

"I enjoy helping out at the spaghetti suppers. I'm there every month volunteering my time."

--Olivia Wegman

"It has been good to work with such dedicated students who volunteer their time to help others."

--Ms. Fey

"I enjoy helping out the community and giving something back, since it has given me so much."

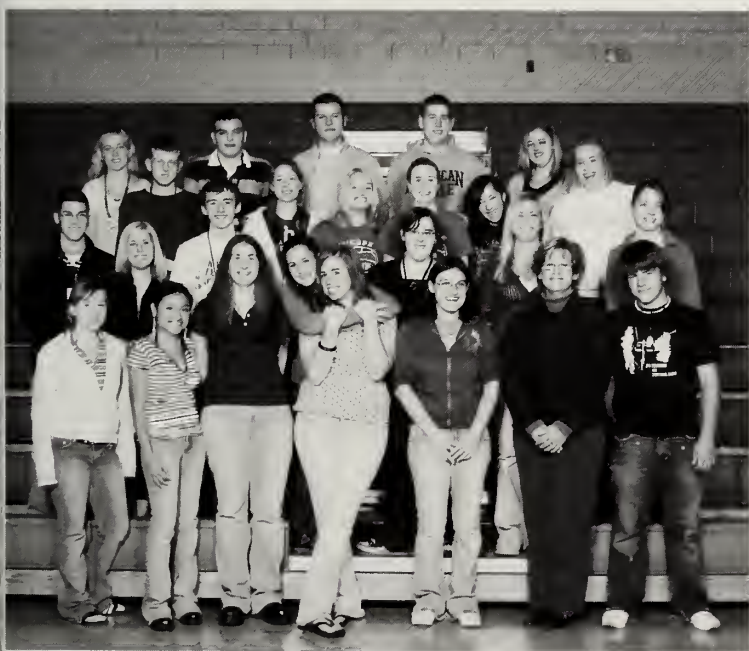

--Joseph Krzystofik

Giving Something Back

Key Club is about donating your time to help out within your community. The Chicopee Comp Key Club participates in the Safe Trick- or-Treat program, a bake sale, spaghetti suppers at the Knights of Columbus on Granby Road, the Kiwanis Club auction, and the Parks and Recreational kids vacation camp. They also volunteer to visit the elderly in nursing homes, they tutor kids after school, and they even accept twenty extra hours of outside community service work, too!

Most students that join Key Club, join only because they want a good transcript to send to colleges, but others participate in it for the experience of what they might want to pursue as a career. Some simply just want to give something back to their community. Many prove the point that fun is where you make it; having a good time while doing something meaningful is the essence of the Key Club. Whatever their reasons, new members are always welcome, especially when helping hands are always needed.

- Amanda Kenney

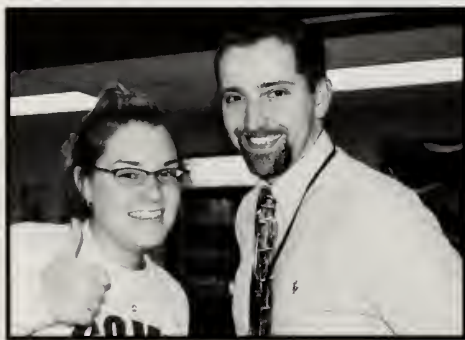

This group of kids represent Comp's Key Club. They work hard in finding new charities to give to and lend a helping hand where needed. They can make a difference in society.

Student Council

Whether they're working on the next Homecoming dance or Spirit Week, this year's student council definitely has class. The hard work that the Student Council puts into its array of school functions makes the school year a fun and more memorable one. These students take time out of their busy schedules to make Holiday Cards for the soldier's home and also organize many of the "dress-up" days for spirit week. The unique ideas for almost all the activities in Spirit Week are arranged and set up by these members; without them we might not have been able to enjoy a week of rivalry between the upperclassmen and underclassmen. One thing is for sure, with all the hard work that is produced from this bunch, they would all agree that it's well worth it.

- Heather Salamon

Volunteers are always needed, especially during spirit week.

President Kristin Marcotte and Advisor Mr. Jendrysik work hard to set up activities for the school.

The girls of Student Council gather their money together to pay for their shirts. It's not spirit for your class, its spirit for your club.

As Schools Match Wits

Comp vs. Westfield High, who would have known? This year's team for As Schools Match Wits was dedicated and well prepared for their chance at winning. This group of students was pulled together in a short time, but they couldn't have been better chosen. These students showed their intelligence in all areas from Literature, Math & Science, Sports & Entertainment, the Arts, History and more. Although the game ended in a tie (115-115), they all agree that they had a good time.

-Heather Salamon

Hard at thinking, the team worked together to find out the answer to one of the hardest questions. "I watch Jeopardy a lot," says Meg Sullivan. Perhaps that's why she is good at answering the hard questions.

"I'm an alternate for the team. Mr. Czap asked me to do that. It was still exciting. I was nervous for everyone on the main team, but they did a really great job! I'm proud of them for pulling it together on such a short notice."
-Dominique Johnson

"The whole experience of being on the team, along with the smartest sophomore in the school, the valedictorian, the immortal Randy Belisle and Dominique was just really honorable. The fact that we ended up in a tie was disappointing, but we did our best, and it was a ton of fun!" -Meg Sullivan

The team and advisors are all together before the game. What?! Did you think that it was all about hard questions and hard thinking?

Academic Decathlon

Intelligence and wit is exactly what Academic Decathlon is all about. In the Academic Decathlon competition, students compete against each other in ten different subjects and events. Some areas include math, science, speech, an essay, and a super quiz. For this year's team, there was a big disappointment. This year's team for Academic Decathlon was unfortunately absent in the Western Massachusetts State Academic Decathlon Competition. Comp's team was supposed to be at the Competition for 7:00am in the morning, but the bus driver had overslept and did not come to pick up the students until 9:00am, which was too late. We're all sure that if the team had made it to the competition, all their studying and hard work would have paid off.

-Heather Salamon

"Studying for any kind of test is a must, but going head to head against one another brings more of an anxious, exciting feeling that makes you want to do better. It makes you want to win." - Who

Working Hard and Having Fun

This serious group of girls knows how to have fun after studying for the competition.

Let the Games Begin

The Game Club is for young people who are interested in meeting on Tuesdays and playing all sorts of games. These games include board games, role playing games, video games and card games. In some ways, the game club is as much about hanging out and socializing as it is about games. The range is very broad from battleship to Halo. Mr. Archambault has been busy keeping these kids under control because sometimes the games can get a little heated. Steve Friesberg said "Game Club is a great place to come after school. It really helps keep stress levels down. Also its a good place to meet friends." Even though it is one of the newer clubs at Chicopee Comp this year it is going strong.

-Justin M. Lapierre
and
Joe M. Krzystofik

Richard Pelletier focuses really hard while playing the game of chess. He seems to be so into the game I dont think anyone wants interfere.

Let's Get Down to "Business"

Business Club is one of Chicopee Comp's newest Clubs. This club is aimed towards business-savvy young people. They have been busy this year being involved in a pierogi sale, a fashion show and a cookbook filled with recipes from Compaccinos. They also voyaged to New Jersey this year to meet with thousands of other business students. The Business Club's favorite motto is "Just Do It," and they say you can do anything with a can-do attitude.

- Justin M. Lapierre and Joe M. Krzystofik

Mrs. Gil is the teacher for accounting. She loves teaching this class and she gets a good laugh from her classes as well.

Art Club

Art Club this year has been exciting for both the students and Mrs. Fahey. It is the perfect place for creative students who don't have the materials or means to do it at home, or for students who need extra time and space to work on their art. There has been some exceptional artwork done this year, and every year it gets better and better. Many people in Art Club are interested in pursuing art while in college. Some members of the art club will have their work featured in the massive art show which takes place every spring.

- Justin M. Lapierre
and Joe M. Krzystofik

"Before there was language there was art"

-Ms. Fahey

"I love to come to Art Club because its a great place to be creative and hang out with people who are interested in art."

-Amanda Robillard

In Art Club students can work on coloring, painting, working with clay and so much more. Crystel Warren is using paint to create a set of portraits.

"I think Business Club is a good club for people who are interested in going into the business world."

- Allison Montemagni

"I love Business Club. Every Thursday it's the first thing I think about when I wake up. Business Club rocks!!"

-Mike Cantin

Late Overdue: Library Aides

The library aides spend one period a day helping out the librarians do the sometimes challenging job of keeping track of incoming and outgoing books, signing in students to use computers, and just dealing with the dozens of students that come into the library every period. Along with these everyday tasks, the library aides also learn patience to deal with the sometimes hectic environment. They also get the opportunity to learn all about the ins and outs of keeping a library going smoothly.

Students work hard to help out the teachers that bring their classes into the library for research. They know what goes on within the library and do whatever they can to get materials teachers need and researching valuable websites.

One of the most wonderful things about the library aides is that they are always helpful to new and unfamiliar faces that come into the library.

Astonishing Aides

Aide, Krystal Pedia, checks in the incoming stock of books recently borrowed from students. "It's a relaxing place to be during 7th period, and it's nice to be able to help people out when they need it," she said.

Best Effort: Officers & Advisors

Anywhere you go, these class officers can be seen together. Not only do they work together inside of school, but they also make the time to hang out outside of school.

The Junior officers and advisors Kyra Wilk, Mrs. Guilmette, Amanda Major, Atoa Ripley, Mr. Paquette and Marie Lopez take a break to goof around after diligently working on plans for Junior Prom!

"POW! It's not easy being Green!," shouts Ms. Thayer in front of Mr. Meulemans' superhero masterpiece. Mr. Beaudry shows off his muscles adding "I'm really looking forward to being a officer for the class of 2010... dude."

Goofing off as usual are Mr. Z, Ally Montemagni, Carly Siano, Meg Sullivan, Nikki Wagner and Mr. Jendrysik.

The senior class officers and advisors get together on Halloween. Officers, once again, get together to show off their goofy side!

The Final Act

Drama is something every high school student is familiar with. Believe it or not, some people actually join drama club to escape from or channel the drama that occurs in their lives. The Chicopee Comprehensive Drama Club, led by Ms. Freisberg, meets every Wednesday after school. Ms. Freisberg transferred to Comp this year from Fairview Veterans Memorial Middle School and enjoys the change. "I am so happy to have the opportunity to work with such a talented group of students. Every club meeting is entertaining from start to finish," she remarked. Senior, Courtney Young, was president of the Drama Club this year. She said, "Being in Drama Club has been an honor for me. Working with everyone has been an awesome learning experience, and I wouldn't change anything about it." From the beginning of the year on, they work diligently, preparing for the productions that they put on during the year. The first production is typically a Christmas or winter theme play. The other productions are one-act plays that are presented in the spring.

Senior Richard Pelletier mused, "The best part about Drama Club is being able to recite the lines and make them your own."

Senior Jeff Phelan waves to his adoring fans during the Christmas production. He was on hand to greet and entertain all of the young children who attended.

Save The Last Dance

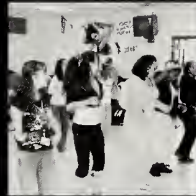

Performers from the Colts Crew practice their routines diligently before each performance.

Hip Hop Dance Club

Music from Jay-Z, Beyonce, and other popular hip-hop performers provides the infrastructure for the dance routines.

The hip hop dance team is best seen live. They simply must be seen to be believed. Their talent is tops.

This may look like a confrontation between two students, but it's actually one of the many dance steps that the performers use in their routines.

The team combines the importance of friendship and teamwork with the fun of dancing. "Hard work for a good show," says Officer Morrisette.

Whether it's tearing up the dance floor or just "stompin' the yard," urban dance has become a very popular activity among teenagers. Movies such as "You Got Served," "Save the Last Dance," and "Step Up" have helped to influence the new dance styles. The Chicopee Comprehensive Colts Crew, sponsored by Officer Joe Morrisette, is a great way for students at Comp to express their love for movement. The club meets every Tuesday and Thursday in Cafeteria A, and they have several opportunities to "show their stuff" to the rest of the student body during the year. Performances are given at assemblies, pep rallies, and on Color Day. They are also known to be a favorite performing act in the school's variety show, Frolics. Junior Oni-Re Brevard, known to her friends as Ife, states "Being in the Colts Crew is a fun and energetic experience."

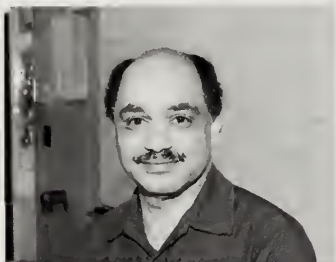

Skills USA

Skills USA is a club that prepares the students for leadership in the world of work skills. Skills USA is also involved in community service, and they compete with other schools. They worked on the OCC (Opening / Closing Ceremony) which raises money for children with severe autism. Skills USA also speaks at district conferences. Furthermore, Skills USA helped put on the school dance in March.

Skills USA is run by Mr. Williams, the club advisor. The club officers are President Lindsay Galarneau, Vice President Richard Pelletier, Secretary Amber Wood, and Treasurer Kaitlyn Coleman.

-Jessica Thibodeau

What is it like being in Skills USA? Richard Pelletier replies, "It's uplifting. We are making better of our lives."

These members of Skills USA helped in the Jimmy's Stuff the Stocking campaign. They helped bag toys and things for the kids.

Club advisors Mr. Williams and Mrs. Coleman work hard to make the members of the club successful.

Mike Drewniak holds up a Christmas card made for the kids. Skills USA helped make cards for the Jimmy's Stuff the Stocking campaign.

Electrathon

Each school picks one student to be the driver of the car. There are over 60 other schools that compete in the races.

Chicopee Comprehensive High School is involved in the Electrathon project every year. The goal of the Electrathon project is to provide a spectator sport that will build public awareness of the possibility of electrical vehicles. It shows how to learn how to think rather than what to think. Each person in the Electrathon helps build the team car. The cars are driven in a competition with other schools. The winner will be the car which is the most efficient, best built, and which travels the course in good time with a given amount of battery power. They use lightweight materials, along with a variety energy sources, to power the car. Physics, engineering, and manufacturing meld in this complex project. The club advisor is Mr. Clark, and the co-advisor is Mr. Gassanola.

-Jessica Thibodeau

Mr. ("Fizzix") Clark is one the advisors. He is always proud of his team.

This is Mr. Gassanola. He is one of the club advisors for Electrathon.

In the pit you have only a few minutes to fix it and go.

This is the cute lucky duck. Electrathon members super glued it to the car. It has been there for years.

The members are working hard by helping prepare the car. They spend a lot of time working on this big project.

Band And Color Guard

When watching color guard and band, what do you think? Many think color guard is just about throwing flags and rifles into the air and hoping they get caught. Is band just about hitting the right notes? For band and colorguard, two groups of talented individuals, it's also about dedication and believing in yourself.

Practice is all it really takes to be good. They work hard in and out of school. Color Guard is an extracurricular activity, whereas band classes are offered during the school day. Color guard, performs at football games and spring and winter concerts. They dance, twirl, and do intricate routines. They put on impressive shows with the help of a lot of practice on the side.

Band supplies the music at games or spirit rallies for color guard to perform to. These two groups mostly perform together, and that's what makes them both put on a great show. So when you're at a football game or spirit rally, take some time to sit back, listen and enjoy the show.

-Jessica Buchanan

Shana Deroscher, Adam Reardon and Charles Laboy practice together after school. They are practicing for the upcoming winter concert.

And Now a Word from Our Color Guard

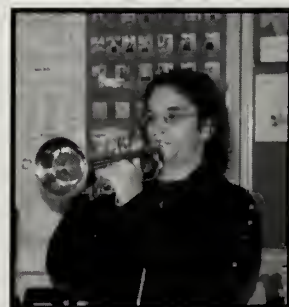

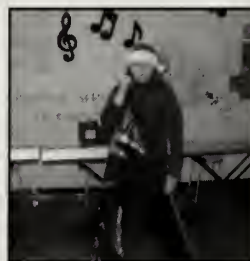

"Color guard is a lot of hard work. It also goes along the line of getting bumps and bruises. But when on stage, the hard work pays off," said Tamra Clawson.

Amber Wood, Chris Hebert and Alexis Patridge show a color guard stance. Here, they stood "at ease."

This group puts on an amazing show. The music played is beautiful. The conductor does a fantastic job.

Tamara Clawson takes a break from practicing her twirling. She shows us how well she knows her stances.

Senior Adam Reardon plays his trumpet at practice. He's playing the tune "Eye Of The Tiger."

Chorus

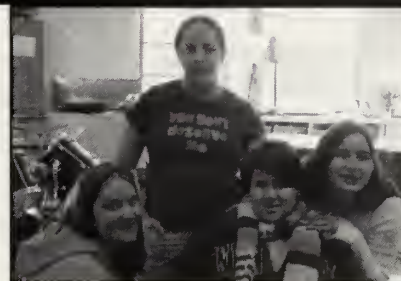

There's more to chorus than great voices and a great teacher. It's the friendships you develop along the way and the great new songs you learn, too. Chorus is a group of singers who indulge in what they love. T

Some people think chorus is nothing more than great voices and words with a melody. But some members of chorus would beg to differ. It takes hard work and time. People see Mrs. Borowiec as a sweet lady, but when it comes to getting a song done right, she pushes her students "to the max." She strives to get her students to do a great job, to get her classes to have fun, and to get them to hold nothing back.

Many students enter chorus and are really shy, but chorus is really for anyone who loves to sing. Many go into chorus thinking it's an easy "A." However, many leave the class at the end of a single period with a sore throat or no voice at all. Mrs. Borowiec wants her students to open themselves up because many students have amazing voices and don't even know it.

She only works her students hard to prepare them for what lies ahead. She conducts rehearsals for weeks so they are ready for the upcoming night of the Winter Concert. This year they sang tunes from Les' Miserables, performed Christmas songs, and concluded with William Tell. They also prepare for the Spring Concert in May. Chorus is a fun class, and who knows, if you try chorus, you may find yourself singing your heart out.

-Jessica Buchanan

For Nicole Duval, Tamara Clawson, Paige Dempsey and Chrystle Labreque, chorus is the highlight of their day. They take a break from singing, to sit back and catch their breath, literally!

This happy group of students gather around the piano. They practice so anxiously for the upcoming Winter Concert!

Raise Your Voices

Senior Nicole Duval says, "I've been in chorus for three years now. I took it to get a better view on the concept of music and the art of chorus!"

Freshman Makiah Chumack-Perez says, "This is my first year in chorus. I took this chorus class because I enjoy singing. It's pretty much my life!"

Senior Jessica Buchanan says, "I took chorus because I love to sing. Being in chorus taught me a lot about music, and I had fun singing!"

Comp Chronicle

The school newspaper is responsible for updating the staff and students on world events, school events, fashion and sports. In some way it also unites the students. For instance, the students are able to voice their points of view on different topics that are of interest. This year, we have a new advisor for the newspaper, Ms. Friesberg. This lady has dedicated her time this year to helping the students write, develop a story, get information, and edit their work. There is a new copy of the newspaper every month. Back in the day, the students had to pay for the newspaper, but recently, the newspapers are given out in advisories, for free. No matter what your interest is, the newspaper students work hard to dedicate their time to making the school newspaper the best it can be.

- Ally Montemagni

Ms. Freisberg helps Katie Vient out on her article. She is a devoted advisor that puts hard work and dedication both in and outside of school to make the Comp Chronicle the best possible.

The newspaper staff had time to take a break from their deadline for a picture. If you work hard enough for the deadline, you have a little time to goof around.

Alex Parnicky shows Jill Rodowicz an astonishing story. That is what newspaper is all about-- researching the stories that will grab the readers' attention.

Stephanie Wheeler and Katie Vient take a break from writing their stories. "Newspaper is fun and interesting. We get a whole bunch of stories together for our school," exclaims Katie Vient.

S.A.D.D.

SADD is a group of students who plan events to prevent teenagers from making destructive decisions. The advisor, Ms. Pavoni, has been in charge of SADD for eight years now. "I think that students are making better decisions when it comes to drinking and drugs. They are choosing to stay sober," she said. The officers, Jeremy Pasterczyk (President), Amanda Nowak (Vice-President) and Kevin Joly (Director of Public Affairs), have a good outlook on this year's events. This year, SADD has coordinated a dodge ball tournament to raise funds in order to hold more events throughout the year. It was a great success. Another event held by SADD was a movie night. It showed that students can have a fun time without drinking and drugs. Two other traditional events are the "Day of the Dead" and the seat belt check day. These are set during the prom season to help prevent any destructive behavior such as drunk driving. The "Day of the Dead" is a day when SADD members read mock obituaries of students to represents what it would feel like if a classmate died. "We try to get kids to realize how important it is to make good decisions when it comes to driving," says Ms. Pavoni.

-Victoria Curto

During a meeting, students discuss ideas for upcoming events. Some meetings are more causal, but during "crunch time" for an event, it is a bit more intense.

SADD Advisor and Officers: Ms. Pavoni, Jeremy Pasterczyk, Kevin Joly and Amanda Nowak

"I care about America, and teens are the future of America. So I'm just a sailor on the ship of the future." -Justin M. Lapierre

"Being a member of SADD has encouraged me to be a responsible individual and to set a good example to the school community."

-Kate Rodowicz

Student Advisory Council

The Student Advisory Council is made up of three students and one advisor from each school. The goals of the activity include promoting communication between the school committee and the student body, advising the school committee in its decision-making process, presenting proposals to the school committee about issues that are important to the student body, and to be truly representative of the entire student body.

The council often meets to participate in decisions about their education. Their way of doing this is to work directly with the people who make these decisions. The activity encourages greater student involvement in students' education. The student body elects the SAC to represent its views. Each of these representatives is allowed direct access to discussions and decisions that may occur during school committee sessions.

Advisory Groups

Advisory period is a time when each student takes a break from his or her academic schedule to either play group games, socialize or even finish up homework. The purpose of the advisory period is to allow advisors and students to become familiar with one another. Its goals are to create a working school community, enhancing students' skills, lowering the dropout rate, improving academic achievement and reducing discipline issues. In advisory, many groups find themselves finding something new to do everyday. There are many positive outcomes. In Mrs. Guillmette's and Ms. Frisbe's advisory, the students fill out scholarship applications and discuss personal issues. Mr. Lamothe and Mr. Paquette encourage group activities. Each day includes a different activity. The group often plays "Scene It!," a board game that involves all members of a team. Human pretzel involves strategy as each member tries to detangle themselves. Some outcomes of advisories are a decrease of absenteeism, an increase of college or other post secondary education participation, better overall behavior, improved social skills and an improvement in student achievement.

Thinking hard about all the decisions they will make at the next meeting, Mike Lemme and Whitley Smiley plan what to say at the next school committee meeting.

Advisory Groups: The Advisory Board

Here, Jen Kalisz, Colleen Hedges, Sam Downey, Kristy Smith, and Randy Belisle spend their advisory time helping out the head-honcho of advisories, Mr. Czaprowski. There's always a lot to do, and these students are always more than willing to help "Czap" out.

"Conga conga CON-GA!!", shouts some advisory girls roaming the hallway on 'food friday.' Advisory is a time for many other groups of people to socialize and take a break from their normal academic schedule. Here on the conga line are seniors Amanda Flowers, Julianne LaBrecque, Crystal Mendez, Sam Langevin, Meg Sullivan, Amanda Nowak and Kate Hamelin.

The Best in Class: National Honor Society

N

The National Honors Society is rooted upon four standards: leadership, scholarship, service and character. Each member is accepted based upon the quality and quantity of each standard.

A grade point average of 88 or above is required for admittance into the club. Twenty-five hours of community service throughout the year is also required to remain a member.

Tracey Williams, Sarabeth Hedge, Andrew Densmore and Robert Crosier make up the government system for the National Honor Society. They always put in 100% effort to keep the club running.

Julianne LaBrecque tutors freshman Derek Gagnon in Spanish. "Spanish is my favorite subject so I really love helping out Derek," said Julie.

The National Honors Society of 2006-2007 is capable of just a little silliness. Many may stereotype the club as serious, hard-working students, but not on this photographer's watch.

Ms. Lori
Parzych

Ms. Parzych is the advisor for the National Honor Society. This is her eleventh year advising, and she just gets better every year. Ms. Parzych is always there to answer any questions and keep the meetings in order.

YEARBOOK

Yearbook is a class offered at Chicopee Comprehensive High School that teaches students responsibility and hard work. Yearbook is a class that students know they can do well in... as long as they make deadlines! Although it's not all a breeze, it does require a bit of hard work and dedication. Pages must be submitted to the plant on time! Our deadlines usually consist of a three week cycle, give or take a few days. The pages are then sent back to us from Herff Jones to be "proofed." Corrections are made and then submitted back to the plant. Thus comes your yearbook. There are about five deadlines every year with about thirty six pages sent each time. Students who take this class learn how to talk to other teachers, students, and businesses; crop and tag photos and deal with computers that barely work. Once you take this class for the first time, you really can't help but want to take it again. The teacher, and main editor, Mr. Brown is a brave soul as we like to call him. He is one teacher dealing with a group of unruly students who wait until the day before deadline to type stories, place pictures, and edit. "B-dog" and editor Amanda Kenney spend nights and weekends fixing our mistakes. "It's a tough job, but someone has got to do it," says Mr. Brown! Now, that is dedication!

- K. Liucci! and J. Pepin! YO!

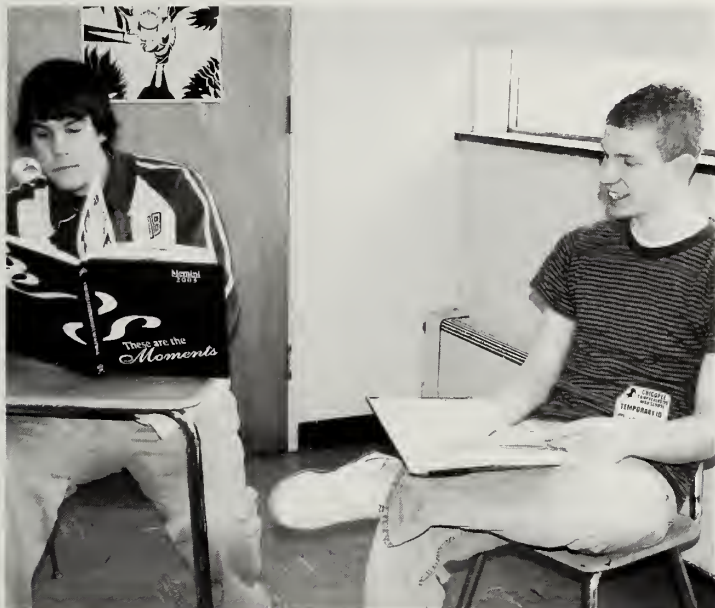

Katie Liucci, a junior, takes time out of doing nothing to bother Mr. Brown until he lets her use the pass. He will eventually give in to get her out of his balding hair.

Newcomers Joe Krzystofik and Justin Lapierre study previous yearbooks to get the gist of what they're doing.

Seniors Ally Montemagni and Sam Langevin show off their "guns" during yearbook. Ally, a newcomer, caught on to the way things work around here really quickly.

Editor, Amanda Kenney, works on her newest story for the year book. All of the pages run through her before getting sent off into the world of yearbooks.

"We need better printers"
Katie "L Dubz" Liucci

Senior Spirit

Senior year is always the craziest. Despite senioritis and senior privileges, we still ask "where do we find the time to have fun?" We have been waiting three years to wake up for our 'last first day' of school. Senior year is such an exciting year for all of us who have seen each other grow up throughout the years. We are finally the top class, the class everyone looks up to and the one others strive to be like; we have paid our dues and earned the right to rule the school. Now that we have experienced all the trials and tribulations of being underclassmen, we can honestly say, "Been there, Done that." We survived the first day of high school, the dreaded MCAS, the tough classes, the Red Sox trip and Junior Prom. We will always have those memories of who we were with and how we felt, even if we do not remember what we were wearing. This year, without a doubt, tops all.

We can all agree on one thing: we had fun! Throughout the years and many social events, we earned our credits and became closer; some of us may say that we have become just like family.

The Sword Game is one event every senior goes to. These two friends, Stefanie Donze and Nicole Fredette, show their enthusiasm for the Colts.

While enjoying a nice ice cold soda, Chris Sawa and Mike Zak hang out and relax. No matter what, these were two friends that always knew how to have a good time.

Best friends, Sam Downie and Jill Rodowicz, enjoy one of the last days of their summer vacation.

Seniors come together on the morning of the "last first day" of school with the feeling of relief because they are no longer underclassmen. This very spirited class awaits the exciting year to come.

Amanda Kenney, Cindy Wodecki, Victoria Curto, and Olivia Wegman brought Sarah Anne Morelli to Friendly's restaurant for her 18th birthday. They all ended up helping with yearbook. All were in the yearbook class at one time or another, except Cindy who helped with yearbook work during her study hall and after school.

Saved the Best

For Last

The sword game was a very bright day, but luckily these two seniors brought their sunglasses. Sam Langevin and Joselyn Comeau enjoyed the sunny day and got together before the start of the game.

Princess look alikes? No, these are just two seniors who dressed up for Halloween dress up day. Heather Chateaufneuf and Amanda Nowak play dress up and win school spirit points.

To get ready to cheer for the Colts, best friends Sarah Mekal, Meghan Sullivan, Lauren Pineau and Nicole Wagner put their game faces on. These seniors define school spirit.

OUTSTANDING!

Senior year is always great when you have a best friend to enjoy it with. Rachel Paquette and Kathleen Laughlin have been friends for a very long time and will always remember their four years here.

Your favorite movies come to life for this group of spirited seniors. This is their last year to really show off, and they did!

Class History

Students usually go all out for the sword game every year. Lauren Pineau, Jen Kalisz, Carly Siano, Joselyn Comeau, Nikki Wagner and Sam Langevin had a lot of fun getting ready together before the game and going to the party after we won the sword back from High with a score of 29-6.

Good friends Jeremy Shepard, Tibor Kmeczik and Abdou Mourad call themselves "Chi-Town." These three have always made everyone laugh wherever they go.

The History of the Best...

Crazy as always, Katie Pressey and Joselyn Comeau enjoy themselves over the summer on their cruise through the Bahamas. They even bought matching shirts to remember how much fun they had.

During these past few years, we've not only been coming to school, sitting in class and going home, but in between we have all met amazing friends and made unforgettable memories together.

Some say high school is the best years of your life. Most of us are just now realizing how true that statement is. Between the good and the bad, we have all been turning into young adults together, and now it's our time to go into the real world. Some of us are going to move away while others will stay close to home.

No matter the distance we will always be able to look back at our yearbooks and remember all the crazy times and laughs we shared together throughout the years.

-Sam Langevin

All dolled up, Jen Riether, Brit Bourdo and Jessie Cote get ready together before Junior Prom. "I felt like a princess; everyone looked so beautiful," said Brit.

Junior year Powder Puff was outstanding. The victory went to the best.

'07 always seems to be found together. Spirit week, especially color day always seemed to put everyone in an instantly good mood.

Stef Donze and Katie Vient sat together at one of the football games. It was Katie's birthday, and they celebrated by cheering on their team. "We love going to the games and watching our boys play. We cheer on our cheerleaders too because we have a lot of friends on the team, especially Rachel Senecal," Katie Vient said about the sophomore year football season.

In or out of school, the AP English class is either found studying together or partying together. They took this picture to show their teacher how much fun they have with each other.

Four Years Ago...

Brittany Bourdo and Alora Cirillo are getting ready to go out for another great time! These girls always had something fun to do... especially freshman year!

The one thought running through ninety-nine percent of the minds of '07 on the second day of school was, "How on Earth am I going to get through the school with all of these upperclassmen?!"

September of 2003 reacquainted old friends and brought us together to experience the "scary" thing called high school. After organizing our schedules and getting into a routine, the real high school feeling set in. Our victory at the sword game set the tone and initiated our school spirit. As we huddled together on Kuzdal Field, wearing blue and gold paint, we knew we were a part of the last sword game that would ever be played on that field, which ultimately would bring our class even closer together.

The spirit grew even greater by January. We attended our first Winter Cotillion. Lauren Pineau and Kyle Phillips taught the class of '07 how to dance that night. We dressed our best and felt as though we owned Comp... showed how much we knew!

Those feelings were quickly altered when we scored the lowest cumulative points in the spirit week competition. Despite our devastating loss, our spirits weren't broken because we continued to spread the '07 love. This certainly was only the beginning of an extraordinary high school experience.

-Meg Sullivan

"Check out my muscles!" was the thought of Meg Sullivan. Julie LaBrecque and Amanda Ciecko during Mr. Davis' World Culture class. After a challenging study guide was completed, these three girls were ready to go show some spirit at the Spirit Rally:

Ryan Taylor and Ashley Kelley enjoy their first field trip of high school. They had had a crazy day and are now just enjoying their down time.

Ryan Austin, Jeremy Shepard and Josh Malone goof off as usual in English class. They had no problem giving Ms. Counts a hard time by getting a little out of line.

After settling into English class after the second week of school, best friends Carly Siano, Nikki Wagner and Kate Jopson took a few minutes to talk about life and just relax together.

Allysa Lajoie and Lauren Pineau take a break from dancing to take a few pictures together. Allysa said, "Cotillion was so fun! I can't wait until I go to high school."

Amanda Flowers and Ally Montemagni celebrate together. Here, they received medals for their excellent efforts in gymnastics.

Little Sarah Mekal gets squeezed into a locker by the boys in welding class. Sarah said, "I was so scared they were going to close it, but I knew they were just joking around."

Freshman Year

This group of '07 freshmen gets pumped up together for their first spirit rally. "I'm glad I have a strong stomach; if I didn't, we wouldn't have won any competitions!," said Lauren Pineau as she reflected upon her victory in the fear factor eating contest.

Three Years Ago...

Lauren Pineau and Sarah Mekal wake up extra early on spirit day. Both girls decorated their shirts to make them look more fashionable.

Walking in on the first day of Sophomore year was a piece of cake. We had our own group of friends, and we knew where our classes were. This year brought a specific challenge for all of us. We had to pass the MCAS in order to get our diplomas. Some of us were very worried, others not so much.

Sophomore year we got to select and order our class rings. We finally got to meet our awesome advisors Mr. Jendrysik and Mr. Zdroykowski as well as our class officers, Ally Montemagni, Nikki Wagner, Carly Siano and Sam Langevin. Sophomore year we won the penny wars and received an ice cream party as the reward. We were purple for color day and ended up winning many events in the spirit rally. Unfortunately, we still came in third place.

Sophomore year a lot was learned inside and outside of the classroom. Many friendships were formed, parties were thrown, and tons of memories were made. Finally we weren't the "itty bitty" freshmen anymore, and we were just one year away from becoming upper-classmen!

-Nicole Wagner

Jon Ciaccio, Mike Cantin, Chris Sawa and Kyle Phillips gather around their lockers on color day. You could always find these guys making a joke and having a good time together.

This group of Sophomores gather together at Nikki Wagner's house for a get together. "Every party at Nikki's house is a blast," said Meghan Sullivan.

Amanda Ciecko and Britt Bourdo are always together during school. Amanda admits that lunch is her favorite part of the day.

On dress up day these girls sit together to share some gossip and give Stefanie Donze her birthday gifts. Victoria Curto, Katie Vient, Stefanie Donze, and Ashley Kelley have been friends since middle school..

Kate Jopson, Carly Siano, Evan Berneche, Dan Benard, Jordan Arroyo, and Nikki Wagner sit out of gym class on color day. They discussed some strategies for the spirit events and their plans for the weekend.

These Sophomores are all decked out in purple. Evan Berneche and Ally Montemagni loved showing their school spirit. Woo Sophomores!!!

Sam Langevin and Joselyn Comeau have been friends since they met freshmen year. "There is never a dull moment with Jossy. We have so many unforgettable memories together," said Sam.

Sophomore Year

Danielle Sulikowski and Erica Baker are enjoying a night at their boyfriends' prom. "The night was amazing. The food was great, the music was loud, and Erica being here made it an even better time," said Danielle.

Last Year...

Samantha Demarco and Tania Forte pass the time in class while they await the rally. They were putting the finishing touches on their junior attire.

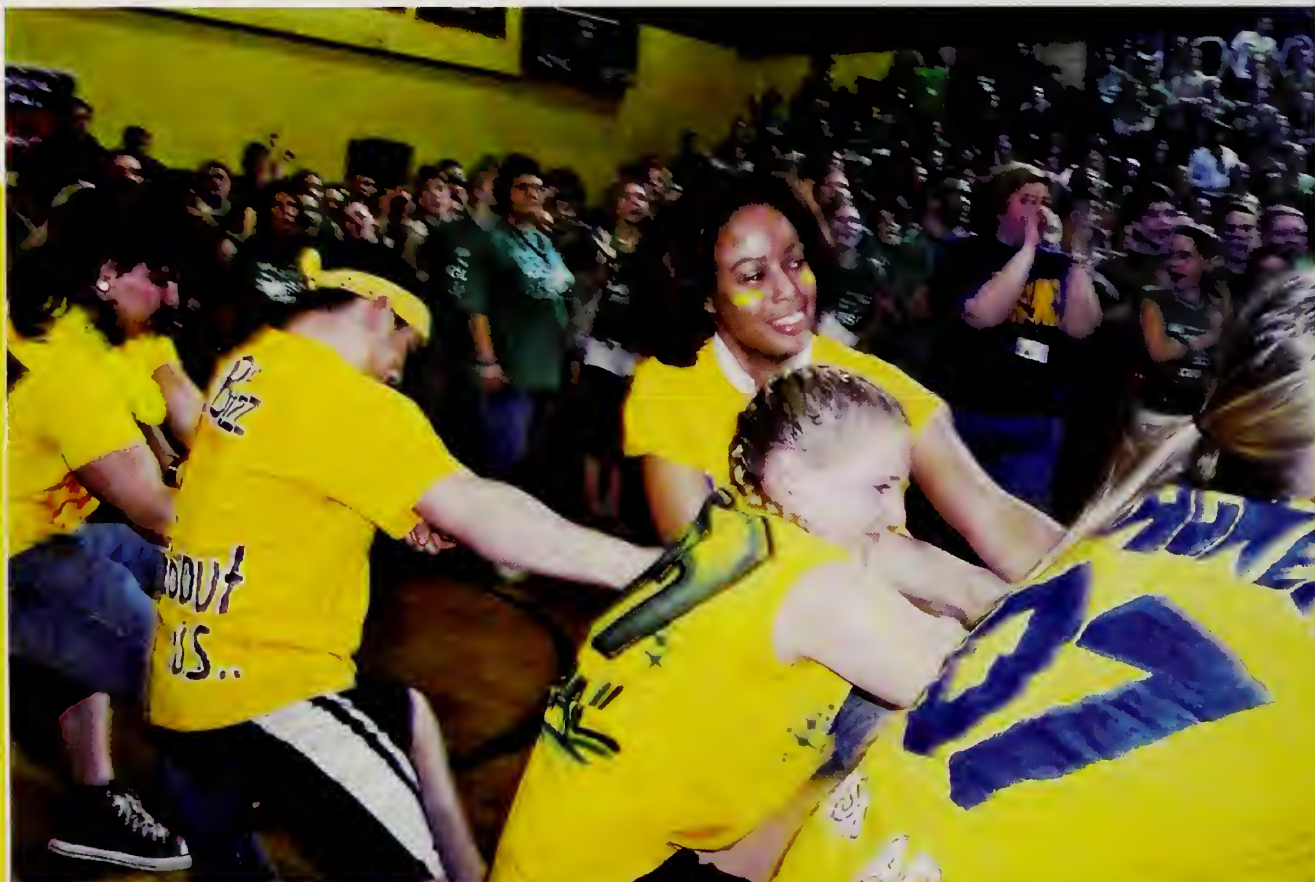

After spirit week a group of juniors get together at Bethannie Freeman's house. Jessica Buchanan and Jen Levesque chatted about our victory over the seniors in tug-of-war.

As we settled in our seats on the first day of school and looked around at all the familiar faces, we recognized the look of content. We were Juniors and finally had upperclassmen status.

By this time we were at the peak of our high school career. We knew who our friends were and all the tricks of the trade. For most of us, MCAS was over, and we were ready to look towards the future. We made it through many rough patches like loosing the sword and being defeated by the seniors in Powder Puff. Teachers encouraged us to take the PSAT's and work on our senior research papers.

Our class advisors wasted no time before nagging us to pay our senior class dues. In march we had one of the best spirit weeks in CCHS history. The week consisted of aloha day, 50's day, superhero villain day and the traditional yet most anticipated color day! Finally it was our turn to show our school spirit by wearing yellow and gold at the spirit day rally. We dominated the seniors in the tug-of-war competition.

The Junior Prom was held on April 13, 2006, at Tecoa Country Club in Westfield. Who can forget those great engraved martini glasses that were given as favors? Then the seniors left. It was graduation already, the year was almost done, and we anticipated the year to follow. We made it! Senior Year!

During the spirit week rally, the expectations were not high for the juniors to win the tug-of-war against the oversized seniors. Although our odds were low, our spirits were high, and we pulled our way to an "07" victory!

The last day of spirit week was by far the best. Juniors flooded the bleachers to prepare for the rally. Heather Chateaufneuf and Amanda Nowak showed their spirit and enthusiasm while sporting hand crafted outfits.

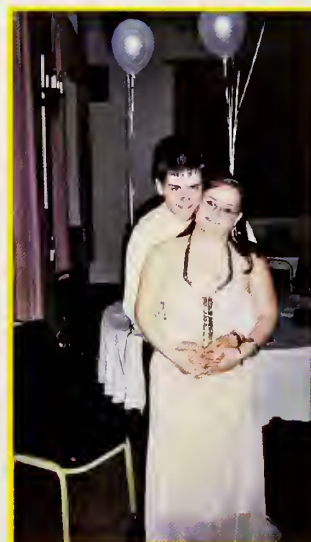

Class couple Alex Lipinski and Megan Heise share the final dance of the evening. Junior prom was a night to remember for everyone, but after waiting for three years, this night was extra special for them.

Having a good time, Jordan Craigwell and Sabian Colon are showing off their unique stylin' tuxes. After eating their food, they couldn't wait to get on the dance floor.

Lasharie "Lash" Weems, Therese "Tiny Dong" Dawson, Stephanie "Donze" Donze, Olivia "Wee Man" Wegman, and Sarah Anne "Dan" Morelli show their Hawaiian spirit by being all decked out for aloha day.

Guy Trask and Jenn Gorneault spend some time alone while others head to the the dance floor. They have been together for two years.

Junior Year

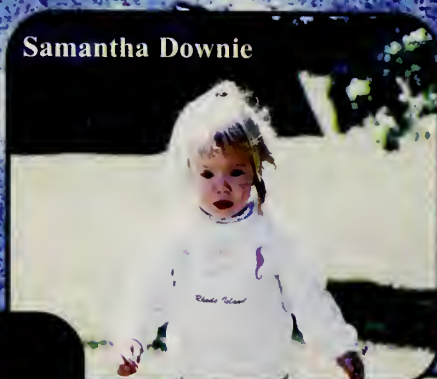

Junior Prom was a fun night for many. These juniors were putting their new martini glasses to good use.
